'More data' on project needed

Environmental panel criticizes stadium study

Members of the Arlington Heights Environmental Control Commission Thursday night questioned the validity of an environmental impact report on the proposed development at Arlington Park Race Track.

The study — prepared by a Chicago consulting firm for Madison Square Garden Corp. — was reviewed at a public hearing of the ECC. The meeting was attended by about 30 persons.

Jean Hanlon, ECC chairman, criticized the lack of data supporting the report's conclusion that the development will have little negative impact on the environment. She cited the traffic study which she said lacks documentation.

"I would like to know how you arrived at these calculations. I wanted the data in black and white and it's not here," Mrs. Hanlon said.

WILLIAM J. MOORE, attorney for Madison Square Gardens, said Mrs. Hanlon was implying "that the report isn't valid."

"Part of the problem is we didn't know specifically what you wanted. You asked for the sources of information and he (the traffic engineer) told you the source," Moore said.

Moore also criticized Mrs. Hanlon for quoting a newspaper article by Arlington resident Richard Frisbie which implies Madison Square Garden officials are trying to deceive Arlington officials.

"I don't think that junk has any part of this proceding. I dispute the validity of the quotes used there," he said.

Comr. Marilyn Macko criticized a psychological-sociological study which states that "the fear of general obligation bonds overrides the fear" of other features, such as visual impact, traffic congestion and crime.

"I have to point out that prior statements in the report don't support that conclusion. The author mentions throughout residents' negative reactions to overcrowded schools, traffic and other issues," Mrs. Macko said.

MRS. MACKO also criticized the report for "not addressing the impact of the introduction of 6,000 people into the area."

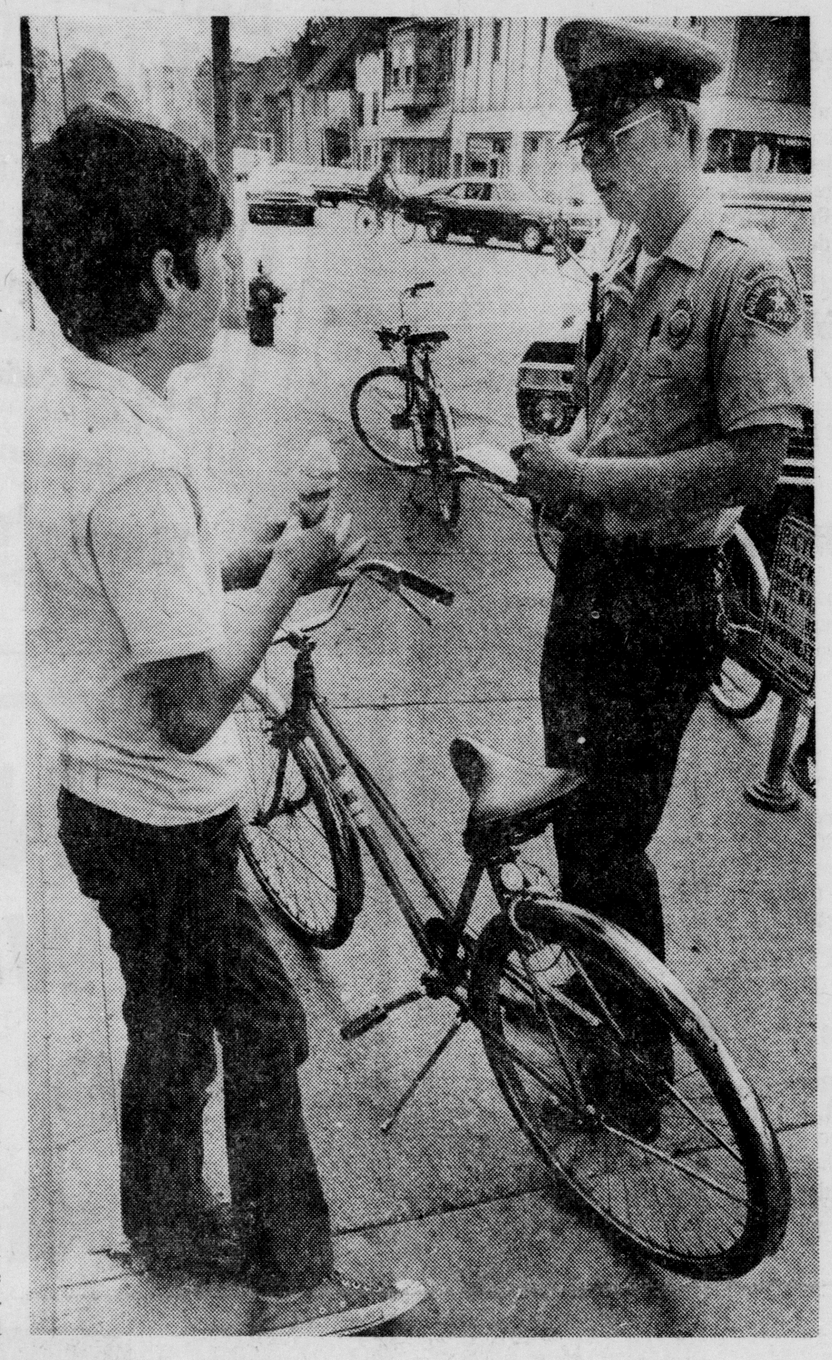
'You have to take that into consideration. It has social impact," she said.

Comr. Robert Edelson questioned the study which said noise generated by the development would be of minimal impact.

"The report meets standards set by the state but many people in the area are worried about the noise. Many of us have experienced trying to sleep at night when we hear the drip of a faucet. That's low on the scale but it still bothers us," he said.

Mrs. Hanlon asked Madison Square Garden officials to submit more data on the environmental impact of the project, including figures for determining the carbon monoxide level during peak hours.

She said the commission probably will make a recommendation at its next regular meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.



A DOUBLE SCOOP, but no double parking. A youngster found that out Thursday when exiting from the new Baskins-Robbins ice cream parlor in downtown Arlington Heights. A police cadet ticketed children for parking their bikes and blocking the sidewalk.

Ozone levels rise, water tables drop

by TOM VON MALDER

Summertime and the breathin' is wheezy.

It was time for those ozone-laden blues again Thursday as suburban ozone levels flirted with the watch levels (preliminary cautions) and Chicago entered its second day of a yellow ozone alert.

A visible haze clung in the sky as persons with heart and respiratory ailments began to restrict their movements until the ozone levels decrease.

Nearly every municipality in the Northwest suburbs reported increased water use, and public works departments began thinking of buckled pavements as temperatures were in the 90s for the fourth day in a row.

A SPOKESMAN for the National Weather Service said the high pressure ridge which has settled over the Chicago area will remain here at least through Saturday. The only relief he could predict was possibly some Saturday afternoon showers which could wash out the air but not do much about the heat.

While Chicago registered high ozone concentrations, levels in the suburbs actually were lower Thursday afternoon than they had been Wednesday.

The Cook County Environmental Control Commission had a reading of .06 parts per million at its Skokie testing station Thursday, said Tom Laggas, manager of technical services. The same station had a .086 reading Wednesday, high enough to issue a cautionary ozone watch. The county issues a yellow alert when the readings are higher than .1 parts per million. Resident's interested in local ozone readings may call 443-7655 and

Easy rolling for vacation travelers

(AS A SERVICE TO ITS READERS, THE HERALD IS BEGINNING A NEW SUMMERTIME FEATURE WHICH WILL APPEAR EACH FRIDAY THROUGH AUGUST — A WEATHER AND TRAFFIC ADVISORY COVERING ILLINOIS AND NEIGHBORING STATES FOR THOSE LEAVING ON VACATION OR WEEKEND TRIPS.)

Motorists should experience little difficulty getting out of the Chicago area this weekend, but road widening projections may cause minor traffic tieups on the Tri-State Tollway.

Illinois State Police say work is continuing between Willow Road and Dempster Street and 111th Street and the Indiana state line. Traffic has been reduced to two lanes in those locations, but heavy traffic tieups are occurring only during normal rush-hour periods.

Indiana State police say they expect moderate to heavy traffic on Interstates 80 and 94.

Wisconsin highways should be fairly clear with the exception of a 13-mile stretch between Portage, Wis. and the Wisconsin Dells on I-90 and I-94. Road work there has reduced traffic to two lanes.

Normal traffic is reported on most Michigan highways. Some repair work on U. S. 131 near Grand Rapids should be completed today, said state police.

The extended outlook for the Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan area calls for continued warm temperatures and increasing chances of thundershowers over the weekend.

Arlington Park Theatre set to reopen

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Arlington Park Theatre, which has been closed the past four months, is scheduled to reopen the week of Aug. 19.

The theater closed April 12 when a new leasing agreement couldn't be reached between the previous production company, Rannoch Productions, and Arlington Park Towers Hotel Corp.

A statement released Thursday by Karen Alton, public relations director of the theater, said "David Lonn producer and managing director of Arlington Park Theatre has entered into an inclusive managerial contract with Arlington Park Towers Hotel Corp. and KEEP Productions Inc. which became effective Wednesday.

"LONN ANNOUNCED the end of the theater's production hiatus and that work has been resumed with the Loopholes, technicalities weaken 'implied consent'

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT and TONI GINETTI

(Fifth in a series)

Loopholes and technicalities blunt courtroom use of Illinois' implied consent law.

Nearly one of three persons who refused breathalyzer testing after a drunk driving arrest retained driving privileges, although Illinois' implied consent law permits license suspension for 90 days, a Herald investigation of nearly 200 implied consent hearings found.

Uncounted other drivers, who refuse breathalyzer testing, convince area judges to recommend "restricted" drivers licenses for travel to and from work, Herald reporters learned after observing nearly a hundred implied consent hearings.

The Herald study — which included examination of court files and interviews with drivers, police officials, judges and attorneys — found that:

- The implied consent law, was passed by the General Assembly in 1972, to discourage drunken driving, has reduced drunken driving arrests by some police departments.
- The law, with a penalty of a 90-day license suspension, encourages plea-bargained reduction of drunken driving to lesser charges because of enforcement problems.
- Defense attorneys often recommend breathalyzer test refusal because proof of drunken driving is more difficult without the tests and because the penalty is a 90-day suspension, not a one-year, drunken driving license revocation.
- More than 65 per cent of alleged drunken drivers in the Northwest suburbs refuse breathalyzer tests. One-third of those retain drivers licenses, despite the test refusal.
- Clerical errors and "red tape" aid some drivers to retain drivers licenses even after court-ordered suspension.

The Illinois implied consent law states that driving is a privilege, not a right, and that a driver "implies . . . consent" to submit to breathalyzer testing if charged with drunken driving. Refusing the test, which is a civil, not criminal, offense, can mean a 90-day license suspension, if the driver does not demand a hearing within 28 days and if the driver is not acquitted at the hearing.

Two studies of implied consent cases in suburban Dist. 2 — which includes Arlington Heights, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling — shows that acquittals range from 35 to 47 per cent.

About 35 per cent of implied consent hearings ended in acquittals between January and April 1975, a sample study by recently-appointed Circuit Court Clerk Morgan M. Finley showed.

A similar study by the Herald, which examined cases decided in 1973 and 1974, found a 47 per cent acquittal rate.

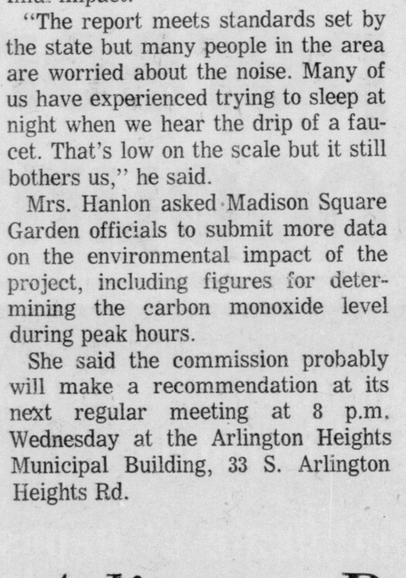
FINLEY'S REPORT showed a 39 per cent acquittal rate in suburban Dist. 3 — which includes the Illinois State Police, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village.

Both Northwest suburban districts convicted a larger percentage of drivers charged with implied consent violations than the countywide average. About 43 per cent of hearings throughout Cook County end in acquittals.

Drivers request hearings in about 60 per cent of implied consent cases, Finley's study showed.

About 2,122 drivers were charged with breathalyzer refusals during the Finley study. About 1,567, or three of four, lost drivers license to suspensions.

The Herald study showed that nearly 16 per cent of implied consent charges are dropped by state prosecutors after hearing requests. The dismissals often are requested after a motorist is convicted of drunken driving, or a lesser offense, although Illinois law permits the 90-day implied consent suspension to be added to a one-year DWI revocation.



HERALD REPORTERS found an unwillingness among some assistant state's attorneys to pursue drunken driving prosecutions without breathalyzer results. Because of that, more than 38.7 per cent of DWI arrests are plea-bargained to reduced or lesser charges, examination of nearly 1,500 cases found.

Attorneys and judges both blame complexity of the implied consent law for inability to suspend drivers licenses of persons who refuse breathalyzer testing. In fact the technical implied consent law often blocks use of breathalyzer results in prosecuting drunken driving cases.

"Put up" — prove you are or are not drunk — by taking the breath tests, was the message of the General Assembly when implied consent law legislation was passed three years ago. Refuse testing and lose your license, legislators said.

The concept was simple, and breathalyzer readings were intended to provide evidence of drunkenness during DWI trials. But, even a breathalyzer reading is not a guarantee of conviction, Assistant State's Atty. Nicholas T. Pomaro found during the Nov. 19 trial of Jack English in Arlington Heights.

ENGLISH, 925 Sterling Ave., Palatine, agreed to breathalyzer testing July 11, 1974 after a drunken driving arrest in Buffalo Grove. English's tests showed that his alcohol blood level exceeded the Illinois standard of .10 which is a presumption of drunkenness.

But the results were never used in court because the breathalyzer machine failed to print the time of English's second test. "We have no way of knowing when any tests were administered," attorney John Tatooles told Associate Judge Anthony J. Scotillo Nov. 12, 1974 in Arlington Heights traffic court.

"Is what counsel is saying correct — that the time is not listed on the printout?" Scotillo asked Pomaro.

"Yes," Pomaro said. But testimony by the Buffalo Grove patrolman who administered the tests would prove that the result came within the 15 minutes required by Illinois law, Pomaro added.

A WEEK LATER, on Nov. 19, Tatolles convinced state prosecutors that the drunken driving case against English was weak. The DWI charge was dropped and English was convicted of reckless driving.

The fine was $200, but English avoided the mandatory one-year license revocation that follows conviction of drunken driving.

"You can admit fingerprints and pictures in murder cases, but you have to bend over backwards and do three somersaults" to use breathalyzer results, presiding Judge Harold W. Sullivan of Dist 2 told the Herald.

"It's the mechanics of the law that are a problem," Associate Judge Al-

AN "INTOXICATION Report" is part of the complicated Illinois implied consent arrest procedure. Although the law is intended to force either loss of drivers license or breathalyzer testing, one of three persons who refuse the test win acquittal after a hearing in Northwest suburban courts.

Retarded centers' funds cut back

Local centers for the mentally retarded are cutting back on programs and staff because less money is coming to them from the state. Spokesmen for Clearbrook Center for the Handicapped in Rolling Meadows and Countryside Center for the Handicapped, Palatine, say their agencies are cutting corners. At Clearbrook the grant from the state was about $250,000 less than anticipated. At Countryside, a new program for handicapped infants will be curtailed because of budget cuts.

Guttilla off village payroll

Former Chief Peter Guttilla will not be given another job with the Wheeling Police Dept. and has left the village payroll. Guttilla held the rank of captain in the department before being made chief three years ago; but with the reinstatement of M. O. Horcher as police chief early this week by the village police and fire commission, there is no room left in the department for Guttilla.

Centel seeks limit on pickets

Central Telephone Co. representatives are in court to try to get an order for picketing members of the striking union to "limit mass picketing, harassment and excess intimidation." The five-week strike now has been turned over to a federal mediator with a second session scheduled today. Negotiations are reportedly stalled on some 30 issues.

School bus drivers organize

School bus drivers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are joining together as a bargaining unit, but neither the drivers nor the school board is willing to call the group a union. Organized at the end of the school year by 67 of the district's 70 drivers, the newly formed Bus Driver's Assn. intends to meet with district officials this month.

New York freezes pay, hikes fares

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City Thursday ordered wage freezes for thousands of public workers and hiked subway and bus fares to 50 cents in a desperate attempt to save itself from fiscal disaster.

While other city unions went along with the voluntary rollback, the police and fire unions balked, forcing Mayor Abraham Beame to ask the city council to impose the freeze.

"There will be a wage freeze — if not voluntary, then imposed," Beame asserted at a City Hall news conference.

"A deal was made sometime during the night which we were not a party to," said firemen's union chief Michael Maye. He said it would "force us into a position we are not going to accept."

"I don't like the deal as it stands," said Ken McFeeley, head of the policemen's union.

The city already has fired thousands of city employes, including policemen, firemen and garbagemen, and made drastic cutbacks in city services.

Victor Gotbaum, president of the nonuniformed workers' union, the city's largest, emerged Thursday from intense negotiations with the city and the Municipal Assistance Corp. — set up to market the special bonds — and said his union would submit to a deferral of "part or all the 6 per cent wage increase that was due city workers July 1."

In return, there will be no further layoffs "except under worsening economic conditions," said Deputy Mayor James A. Cavanaugh.

Beame also announced that $32 million would be cut from the City University's budget. This was expected to threaten the school's tuition-free policy, depending upon action by Board of Higher Education.

Also 25-cent increases for eight of the city's toll bridges and tunnels was instituted.

In addition, Beame announced the elimination of four city agencies and the merging of eight others into four.

Turkey rejects deal on U.S. bases; Soviets warn West on intervention

HELSINKI (UPI) — Turkey has refused an offer by President Ford of $50 million in arms aid to permit the United States to continue operating on Turkish soil bases which monitor Soviet military communications, Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger said Thursday.

"We do not feel any progress was made . . . I do not believe a significant change in the situation was registered," Kissinger said. "We have no reason to believe that there will be any change in the closing down of the American bases."

Kissinger said Ford has emergency powers to allow Turkey to forego payment for arms shipments frozen by the embargo Congress imposed on all arms sales, aid and credit to Turkey until progress is made in peace negotiations over the Cyprus issue.

Pres. Sec. Ron Nessen said Ford has ordered a new effort to persuade Congress to lift the ban. He said an amendment to remove the embargo will be tacked onto Senate and House bills in hopes of passage before Congress begins its vacation Friday.

Kissinger said Ford had more luck when he met in a Big Four session over lunch with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt. They agreed to oppose Arab-African plans to try to expel Israel from the United Nations in September.

Ford came to Helsinki during a five-nation, 10-day European trip, chiefly to join a 35-nation East-West European security summit conference.

During the conference, Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev said the security agreement to be signed today does not give the West the right to interfere in Russia's internal affairs.

"No one should try to dictate to other peoples, on the basis of foreign policy considerations of one kind or another, the manner in which they ought to manage their internal affairs" Brezhnev said.

Although some observers took the speech as a warning to Congress not to make a U.S.-Soviet trade agreement dependent on freer emigration of Soviet Jews, others said if it had been made years ago and literally interpreted there would have been no basis for Moscow's invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Kissinger said: "I thought it was a conciliatory speech."

Wilson said the speech reflected the "spirit of Helsinki."

"Who would have thought years ago that he would have made such a statement?" Wilson said, adding: "What would have been the fate of certain countries if he had made that statement years ago? For instance, what would be the position of Czechoslovakia if he had said that eight years ago?"

The second day of the three-day meeting of leaders from 35 nations of East and West Europe, the United States and Canada again was devoted largely to speeches centered on the need for improved East-West relations in Europe.

But Archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus, departed from his prepared remarks and unleashed a biting attack against Turkey for invading his Mediterranean island state a year ago.

Senate votes to lift Turkey arms embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the second time in two months, the Senate Thursday night voted to lift the controversial arms embargo against Turkey and sent the matter immediately to the House.

The Senate vote was a bare 47 to 46 win for the administration.

The House had awaited the Senate action on the bill, twice refusing to adjourn so it could receive the bill if passed by the Senate.

The action came late on a day of frantic activity, including Presidential phone calls from Helsinki, in an effort to permit the House, which last week refused to lift the ban, to reconsider the matter.

Following that vote, Turkey carried out its earlier threat to take control of more than 24 U.S. military bases there.

During the late night debate, Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said an end to the embargo was necessary if relations between the United States and Turkey were to be repaired.

Noting the ban was enforced by Congress Feb. 5 because Turkey violated the Foreign Assistance Act by using U.S. weapons in its invasion of Cyprus, Sparkman said, "It is clear that Turkey violated U.S. law. But the situation is complex."

"Turkey is an American ally, and if she is weakened she is a weak ally," Sparkman said.

$15 billion tax cut urged for firms, savers

by United Press International

Treasury Sec. William Simon proposed Thursday a $15 billion income tax reduction for corporations, shareholders and savers.

Simon said corporate and dividend income taxes should be reduced in phases beginning with $2.5 billion in 1977.

Simon also said some interest income earned by savers should be exempt from taxation. He also proposed increasing the tax-free ceiling on retirement income plans from $1,500 to $2,000 a year.

The reduction would increase investment and savings by individuals and corporations by about 16 per cent over recent patterns, the secretary told the House Ways and Means Committee.

In other economic action:

• The House voted 303 to 117 to extend price controls on domestic oil for six months. But White House Press Sec. Ron Nessen, in Helsinki, said President Ford will veto it and let prices seek their own level.

Energy chief Frank Zarb said that level may reach 70 cents a gallon by this winter because of the House rejection late Wednesday of Ford's plan to permit graded decontrols over a 39-month period.

• Spurred partly by the impact of new grain sales to Russia, the average of all raw farm product prices rose 3 per cent in the month ending July 15, the Agriculture Dept. reported.

Officials said higher prices for wheat, soybeans, hogs, potatoes and cotton played a major role in boosting the farm price average for the fourth consecutive month to a level 14 per cent above the 1975 low point last March and 6 per cent above a year earlier.

The report said the farm price of wheat, which rose along with other grains in early July in response to rumors of Russian purchases which began July 16, hit $3.33 a bushel July 15 — up 41 cents from June but still 71 cents below a year earlier.

• The Ford Motor Co. reported that its spring quarter ended with a $107 million profit, reversing a record first quarter loss of $10.6 million through drastic cost-cutting moves.

• The Commerce Dept. said orders for factory products rose for the third consecutive month and the stockpile of unsold goods dropped for the fourth month in a row. But Commerce also said retail sales declined last week for the first time in four weeks, and major department store chains said retail sales for the month increased only slightly.

Jimmy Hoffa missing, feared dead

DETROIT (UPI) — James R. Hoffa, whose stormy career in union politics took him to the presidency of Teamsters International and then to prison, was reported missing — and feared dead — by his family and associates Thursday.

"I know the police suspect foul play," said L. Brooks Patterson, prosecutor for Oakland County, where Hoffa lives and where he was reported missing after he failed to return home from an appointment.

"Jimmy never stayed out this long before without reporting in," Patterson said.

Police officially refused to comment on reports sweeping the faction-ridden union that "Jimmy" was kidnaped — or murdered. But a formal missing persons report was filed in Bloomfield Township near Detroit.

The disappearance came three weeks after the latest in a series of incidents reportedly involving rival factions in the 1.7 million member union. A bombing destroyed a car owned by the son of the incumbent Teamsters president, Frank E. Fitzsimmons.

The huge union is divided between Hoffa loyalists and Fitzsimmons, who became president after Hoffa quit in 1971 while serving a federal prison term.

There was no indication that the incidents were linked to their rivalry, although Hoffa wants to unseat Fitzsimmons and regain the presidency himself.

Police said Hoffa, 62, was reported missing about 24 hours after he told his family that he was meeting "someone."

Robert Holmes, a Teamsters vice president, said Hoffa later telephoned home to say he was returning because the person he was to meet failed to turn up.

Police said Hoffa's disappearance came after authorities in Pontiac, about 25 miles north of Detroit, received an anonymous telephone call telling them where they could find his late model car.

Two Americans perish

27 die, 48 hurt in China air crash

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — A Chinese Nationalist airliner carrying 76 passengers and crew members crashed on its second attempt to land in a heavy rainstorm at Taipei International Airport Thursday, killing at least 27 persons, including an American couple.

Officials said 48 persons were injured and one person was missing in the crash of the Far Eastern Air Transport Viscount turboprop airliner.

The Americans were identified only as Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cehon.

Sources at the airport control tower said the British-made plane's landing instruments probably malfunctioned.

The sources said they suspected the plane's landing instruments probably were affected by the electricity-charged clouds hanging low over the airport.

"When the pilot found out that his plane was not properly aligned with the runway only about 1,500 feet away, he asked and was immediately given permission by the control tower to pull up for another try," the sources said. "But the plane failed to respond to the suddenly applied power and it veered to the right, causing the right wing to scratch the ground and then the fuselage to crash.

"The plane bounced up from the impact, jumping a parked Chinese Air Force DC6 transport plane while it rolled over in the air."

The Viscount then plunged to the ground again and broke into three parts with a big section of the fuselage in fairly good condition that apparently made it possible for some passengers to survive, they said.

Witnesses said about a dozen passengers scrambled from the wreckage.

Among the dead were the Chinese pilot and the co-pilot, officials said. They said the two Americans were among 10 foreigners aboard the plane.

The plane was on a flight from Haulien, a scenic spot and tourist destination on the east coast of Tawain about 75 miles southeast of Taipei.

WRECKAGE OF FAR Eastern airliner is scattered after the plane crashed Thursday during a heavy rain storm. At least 27 persons died and 48 were injured in the crash.

Utility tax 'must go,' Ryan tells village Rotary Club

by KURT BAER

James T. Ryan, Arlington Heights village president, Thursday said unequivocally that the village's 5 per cent utility tax "must go."

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Arlington Heights Rotary Club, Ryan also said the village board may decide Monday night whether the plan for a Chicago Bears football stadium at Arlington Park Race Track is still alive.

Ryan said he expects the board to determine whether to accept a proposal from Smith, Barney Inc. to act as its financial adviser and bond broker in any stadium financing deal.

"IF THE DECISION is not to hire bond counsel, the whole question of the stadium would be pretty well dead," he told the group.

If the board decides to continue to investigate the stadium's feasibility, Ryan said he anticipates a final vote on whether to go ahead with the project by September or October. The fact that other sports stadiums around the country have run into financial troubles is insufficient reason to discard the possibility of a successful stadium at the race track, he said.

"I am convinced that many problems of other stadiums are due to a lack of planning, or a change of plans at some point during construction," he said. "Merely because some (stadiums) have not been economically viable, I will not accept that all stadiums, forever after, across the country, are doomed to failure."

RYAN CITED the necessity of a "no-strike agreement" with the labor unions that would work on the stadium, and the use of "good business practices" in the promotion and operation of the facility.

"I don't think any problems with the stadium are insurmountable," he told the Rotarians.

Referring to organized opposition to the stadium, Ryan said the village board "shouldn't judge the sense of the community, or the right or wrong (of the project) by a small vocal minority."

He said he did not know whether a referendum will be called on the proposal to have the village finance the stadium.

It is always easier, he said, to organize opposition than support for any referendum proposition. But he conceded that it is the "people of the community who should decide" if they want the stadium.

ON THE UTILITY tax, Ryan said he still believes the 5 per cent charge on electric, gas and telephone bills in the village is "unfair." But he defended his recent vote to continue the tax in order to pay for a $750,000 public works garage by saying he had no doubt it would save Arlington Heights' taxpayers money in the long run.

The equipment maintenance garage, to be built at the public works center, 222 N. Ridge Ave., is the last project that should be funded with utility taxes, he said.

Byt Ryan also said he supports the need for a police-courts building that, in the past, has been proposed for utility tax financing.

"Like the public works garage, this is not a popular project. People don't think you ought to do them until the day the streets don't get plowed, or the policeman doesn't arrive on a call in less than two minutes," he said.

AN END TO the utility tax will not mean an end to these and other village projects, he said, noting that $28 to $30 million worth of capital improvements are planned in Arlington Heights in the next five years.

"I don't think the utility tax is the fairest way to do that," he said. "By August or September next year the utility tax, hopefully, will be a thing of the past."

Ryan touched on a recent U.S. Appeals Court ruling that found the village guilty of racial discrimination because of its decision not to rezone 15 acres east of St. Viator High School for a low-income housing project.

If the U.S. Supreme Court lets the decision stand it will seriously undermine the zoning power of all municipalities, he said.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS maintain they rejected the Lincoln Green low-income townhouse development in 1971 because the proposed site is surrounded by single-family homes.

"Despite attempts to characterize Arlington Heights as a racist community," Ryan said he was confident "the Supreme Court will look at the Viatorian situation much the same way the village board did — as a zoning matter."

If the appeals court ruling is not reversed by the Supreme Court, Ryan said the village "would work to make the project as amenable to the area as it could."

Ozone levels rise, water tables drop

ask for the Skokie reading.

Neither Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, nor Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, reported increases in the number of heart and respiratory patients this week. Some Chicago hospitals have noticed a slight increase, however.

"Our usual experience is that the ozone levels are lower as you go away from the city (Chicago) and Lake Michigan," Laggas said.

WHEN OZONE levels get high enough — yellow alert stage — the county asks 28 to 30 firms outside of Chicago to cut back or shift fuel. He said these are fuel burning or manufacturing plants that emit high levels of hydro-carbons. Should the red alert, or .4 parts per million, stage be reached, he said drivers would be asked to restrict their trips and the expressways would possibly be closed.

Only Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg reported problems with the village water levels and in both cases it was due more to trouble with wells rather than a high demand by consumers.

Sprinkling restrictions are in effect in Arlington Heights, which officials said has a problem with illegal lawn sprinkling, and in Elk Grove Village. Schaumburg has a ban on sprinkling.

LARRY OPPENHEIMER, Wheeling village engineer, said while current supplies are adequate, "I'd say if the weather continues like this and the high demand for water continues, we may have some problems in a day or two."

scheduled reopening set for the week of Aug. 19.

"Confirmation of the opening date and details concerning plays, stars and ticket prices will be forthcoming immediately along with plans of subsequent productions," Miss Alton said.

"Everything has been resolved and we're all very happy. There's a great deal of excitement going on over here."

A spokesman for Hilton Corp., managers of the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel adjacent to the theater, confirmed a new agreement has been signed licensing David Lonn to produce plays at the theater.

LONN WHO removed the theater's fixtures after "Brief Lives," the last production to be staged in the theater-in-the-round, closed April 12, already has begun a remodelng process at the theater.

Arlington Park Theatre first opened in July 1971 and continuously staged professional productions until leasing problems closed the theater last spring.

In the four years of its existence under the guidance of Lonn, the theater has won several honors.

"Dance on a Country Grave," which premiered at Arlington Park Theatre in December 1973, received a Joseph Jefferson Award for best production as did "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," which won in 1972.

In addition, the latter producton set a new record in Chicago theater by being nominated in five "Jeff" categories and winning all five.

St. Peter's starts addition

St. Peter Lutheran Church, 111 W. Olive St., Arlington Heights recently broke ground for a $700,000 church addition. The addition will include an activity center, a meeting room, a youth center, a band instrument room and classrooms. Completion is scheduled for May 1976.

Correction

Larry Maholland, newly-hired business manager for the Arlington Heights Park District, will not take over the responsibilities of Roger Burke, park board treasurer, as incorrectly reported in Wednesday's edition.

Burke will continue to receive about $2,000 a year for his treasurer's post. The Herald regrets the error.

Opening of Vail Ave. crossing postponed

A shortage of rock will delay the reopening of the Vail Avenue railroad crossing until Tuesday.

Sgt. Jack Weber, of the Arlington Heights police traffic division, said repair crews ran out of rocks Thursday, forcing a postponement of today's scheduled opening.

Asphalt will be laid Monday, Weber said, with the crossing opening for regular automobile traffic Tuesday morning.

The reconstruction of the crossing, which started Monday, involves the laying of new timbers and asphalt. The crossing was considered one of the worst in the village.

Commuter parking lots immediately north of the tracks will remain open during the delay, Weber said.

Village man trained in Scout conference

George S. Dryanski, Arlington Heights, participated recently in the volunteer training program at Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base in the Rocky Mountains of northeastern New Mexico.

He was enrolled in the Catholic Committee on Scouting Conference, which is part of a national training program by the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Dryanski serves as chairman of the Northwest Suburban Council Catholic Committee on Scouting. He is a recipient of the St. George Emblem and the Silver Beaver.

GOOD NEWS FOR SENIOR CITIZENS
The most recent conferences about problems of the aging disclosed that it is possible for most older folks to live happier, healthier, longer and even be physically active.

"DO NOT LIVE A ROCKING CHAIR LIFE"
"If you just sit and wait for death, you will not have to wait so long," said one prominent physician. "The results of such inactivity increases atrophy of the mind, which speeds up degenerative diseases."

AVOID EXTREME STRESS
Cut down on excessive physical efforts, but moderate exercise, some work and companionship are all helpful in maintaining good health and vitality.

HEART DISEASE IS NOT INEVITABLE
If the aging place themselves under the care of a physician and follow advice about diet, sustaining medicines and vitamins, "they need not be afraid of old age."

WE INVITE SENIOR CITIZEN PATRONAGE
By constantly reading about the newest treatments and the medicines most frequently prescribed for older folks, we are able to keep an up-to-date stock of needed medications and other health aids. On prescriptions that must be continuously taken we can often make arrangements for you to get it in economical quantities.

Crane's budget views welcome

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has opened the lid on a Pandora's box of disagreement and debate by proposing specific cuts in the fatty federal budget.

It was a box that needed opening.

Crane has issued a 35-page booklet in which he pinpoints $52.864 billion he believes is wasted federal money. If such a sum could be trimmed from the current U.S. budget, the country could end this fiscal year with a surplus, something almost forgotten in federal government.

That is an admirable goal, and in cold reality, an impossible one; Crane readily acknowledges this.

But the approach he has taken is, we believe, healthy. That approach, to oversimplify, is that "no area of the federal budget may remain sacrosanct."

Practically every budget reduction proposed by Crane is certain to arouse loud and sustained objection.

The Crane plan includes proposals to abolish such government agencies as the Federal Trade Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Board; to eliminate or cut back seriously on social welfare programs; to curtail foreign aid sharply; to reduce our standing army.

We find merit in some of his proposals. Others appear questionable.

That is precisely the reaction Crane has anticipated, but he pleads that an effort must be undertaken at some point to reverse the swelling federal deficit. We agree.

The conservative Crane, known for standing adamantly on principle rather than seeking compromise, has indicated a slight softening of his position. In proposing cuts of $5.75 billion in the defense budget, he argues that fiscal responsibility to end the inflation-recession spiral is as vital as the national defense.

Crane has invited discussion and debate on his proposed cuts and on the principles on which he bases them. His invitation should be accepted by other members of the congress.

But however intense the debate may be, there should be agreement from all parties at the outset on the goal: federal spending must be reduced.

Unfinished business at Forest Hospital

Now that the dust has settled over the Forest Hospital expansion in Des Plaines, city officials should make certain that the fears of residents about patients causing a nuisance in the community are either groundless or corrected.

Part of the residents' objection to the expansion of the hospital's services was that supposedly patients of the mental hospital sometimes roam the neighborhoods.

While the residents may breathe a little easier with the hospital's request for expansion refused, it is not fair to them or the hospital to let a matter drop when it has caused such concern.

The city council through its various committees should determine what provisions can be made to reduce or eliminate this problem — if it exists. Ideally, hospital officials and residents should be involved. Many of the hospital's programs are valuable and should not be stunted by fear.

A definitive policy should be established by the city so that all can exist together as good neighbors.

How to stay away from the 'Jaws' of summer

by DICK WEST

The movie "Jaws" is making its audiences so fearful of sharks that many people have given up swimming. Even in backyard pools.

I myself after seeing the film stopped drawing more than two inches of bath water. And I have friends who won't get within three feet of their goldfish bowl.

The impact of "Jaws" has, in fact, extended far beyond the beaches. A story recently related to me by Sam Waterstock, a pawnbroker, is typical of what is happening. Waterstock's place of business is in a suburban neighborhood that contains two or three other pawnshops and is known obviously, as "the financial district."

When I drove through there the other day the street was practically deserted. There were parking spaces all up and down the block. This was such a novelty, I couldn't resist stopping, even though I didn't need to hock anything.

I found Waterstock pacing back and forth on the sidewalk in front of his store.

"How's business?" I asked by way of greeting.

"Rotten," he replied emotionally. "Rotten. Rotten. Rotten. Rotten."

Many times I've seen Waterstock in a one or two rotten slump. But four rottens were abnormally dismal even for a pawnbroker.

"That's strange," I said "I figured your type of business would pick up during a recession, what with so many people strapped for cash."

"Recession? Who's talking about a recession? Look what's playing at the Peoria," Sam moaned, pointing to a theater in the next block. The current attraction was, of course, "Jaws."

The day after it opened, Sam told me, a young woman who had come to the financial district to hock a matched set of bony swizzle sticks suddenly ran into the street screaming that she had been accosted by a loan shark.

Instant panic. Customers began fleeing the pawnshops in wild alarm.

Waterstock and his fellow brokers tried desperately to restore calm.

"We assured everybody that no loan sharks had been sighted in the neighborhood since the 1952 anti-usury ordinance was enacted," he said. "But try talking sense to a crowd in hysterics."

I said, "Was there any evidence to corroborate that what the girl saw actually was a loan shark and not just some harmless bloodsucker?"

Waterstock shook his head. "A street sweeper came across an old pawn ticket that bore 7 per cent interest, but that probably was only a coincidence. We're keeping it quiet. No need to scare folks unnecessarily."

"Sam," I said, "you can't afford to take chances. Take my advice and hire an accountant to conduct a loan shark hunt. If some unsuspecting debtor does get gouged by a predatory moneylender, you'll all be ruined."

Fence Post: letters to the editor

U.S. inches closer to metric method

It will probably be a long and agonizing metamorphosis from our present system of weights and measures to the metric system which is definitely supposed to be in the offing. The transition is to take 10 years more or less and according to some experts will be well worth the trouble and at least one step toward standardizing this hopelessly diverse world. The U.S. is one of the few western countries that has not as yet changed in favor of this most universal and least difficult set of measurements that is based on units of 10 and has long been the basic tool of the scientific community throughout the world.

Imagine ordering a liter (approximately but just a bit more than a quart) of milk, or beer, or say gasoline? An American gallon is equivalent to about 3.8 liters. That means if you have a 20 gallon tank you would fill it with about 76 liters. If the price of gasoline were 60 cents per gallon, it would cost something like 15 cents a liter. That would sound a little better, but by the time the transition is made petroleum prices will have almost certainly gone wild so we will probably be paying at least 60 cents a liter. That way though, we will still be under a dollar per unit and psychologically it might not have such an impact.

When the speedometers on cars are changed (providing there are still privately owned cars to put speedometers on by then) they'll really have us confused. If you were going 60 miles per hour (and you didn't get a ticket) your speedometer would read about 96 in kilometers. That will take just a little getting used to. And think of the highway markings going to metric: kilometers instead of miles, and how much re-calibration you'll have to do in your mind after being used to miles, half miles and quarter miles, not to mention tenths. How about gas mileage? How many kilometers per liter will your "compact compact" get in 1985?

HOW ABOUT YOUR weight and height? Instead of saying you weigh 150 pounds you'll say 68 kilograms. Instead of being six feet tall you'll be 183 centimeters (2.54 cent. per inch), and if you really get down to splitting hairs so many millimeters — 254 millimeters to the inch. Imagine the confusion that will cause. How do you think the public would react to a news announcement like this:

"Miss Wisconsin tearfully accepted the Miss America crown moments ago. She is a pert blond from ....., Wisconsin, 21 years old, a graduate of ..... University and measures a lovely 91-55-92!"

People would probably be trampled in the stampede to get to their TV sets.

The list of things that would have to be changed is endless. Ships and airplanes go knots, and planes carry pounds of fuel. How to change that to kilograms — 1000 grams or about 2.2 pounds. Horses run furlongs, miles and fractions of miles. They'll have to move all those striped poles at the race track; probably confuse all the jockeys not to mention the horses and bettors. It would sound strange to hear that "Crazylegs," and "Fumblefoot" had just reached the 1 kilometer pole. A kilometer is .62 mile, a mile is equivalent to 1.6093 kilometers. Looks like we're going metric though, and perhaps it will be beneficial.

THEY MIGHT ASK the Arabs to sell us crude oil by so many liters, so many milliliters. A milliliter is one thousandth of a liter, or cubic centimeter or "c.c." By that time it may get down to the thimbleful if they keep raising prices all those years.

There have been certain items around for a long time that have been measured by the metric system. 8 and 16 and 35 millimeter films have been with us for years. 7 and 9 millimeter caliber guns (usually of foreign manufacture), and of course 100 millimeter cigarettes. Some time ago they added a silly millimeter to one brand. Perhaps cigarette smoking will be phased out 10 years from now, but if it isn't, can you imagine anyone walking a kilometer for a Camel? Or would it be two kilometers? That would really be confusing!

Don't ridicule Eckankar system

I am writing in response to your article "Is World Ready for Eckankar?"

Since I have a full-time job and four children, it is difficult to find a free moment to respond to newspaper articles. However, this time I found myself so angered I felt the necessity to make time.

First of all, let me state that I am not a member or in any way directly involved with Eckankar. The only real knowledge I have of the organization comes from two of my closest friends who are members and very serious about their beliefs.

These people are very active in Eckankar and have talked with me at length about the organization and what they believe. Although, as I said, I am not involved, I respect these people very much for their warmth, intelligence, sensitivity and their "faith."

I am deeply incensed at the facetious nature of your article and believe it is a classic example of the case of criticizing and poking fun at something that is not understood.

I have always enjoyed The Herald an am very disappointed and surprised that an article which distinctly pokes fun at a person's rights to his beliefs would appear here.

Schlickman credit to profession

Like most homeowners, my business contacts with lawyers usually involved the purchase or sale of real estate. In most instances I thought their fees excessive for the service rendered. My experiences have convinced me that the established real estate broker is probably far more experienced, knowledgeable and qualified in "closing" procedures than is the average lawyer.

It is with great appreciation that I note that we have a lawyer in Arlington Heights who is not only familiar but also concerned with the taxpayers' dilemmas. As a result, my opinion of lawyers has risen accordingly.

Rep. Schlickman, I wish to thank you for sponsoring the new law which requires the county treasurer to refund tax-overpayment errors, without the necessity of a law-suit.

Obviously this law will deprive some lawyers of an attractive legal fee, but I am sure will be a welcome relief to the long-suffering taxpayer.

Expensive space handshake a waste

Here is my opinion:

We did not accomplish anything with Soviet-American hand shake in space, only a waste of taxpayers' hard earned money. Our government should get someone with brains and back them in developing a meaningful job program for the unemployed, instead of paying senators high salaries for reporting to work only 70 per cent of the time.

The almanac

Today is Friday, August 1, the 213th day of 1975 with 152 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus and Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo. Francis Scott Key, who wrote the Star-Spangled Banner, was born August first, 1779.

On this day in history:

- In 1790, the first U.S. census showed a population of 3,929,214 in 17 states.
- In 1907, the United States Air Corps, now the Air Force, was founded.
- In 1946, the United States Atomic Energy Commission was founded.
- In 1974, Greece restored its 1952 constitution, with guarantees of civil rights which had been suspended by a ruling military government.

A thought for the day: In the American national anthem, Francis Scott Key wrote these rousing words: "Tis the Star-Spangled Banner! O, long may it wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

SAGR court date delayed 2nd time

A federal hearing scheduled for today on U.S. Postal Service complaints against SAGR Inc., Rolling Meadows, will be continued until Wednesday, a U.S. Justice Dept. spokesman said.

The delay, the second since the Postal Service filed a civil complaint July 15, is to allow more time for negotiations on SAGR's offer to correct alleged misrepresentations in company literature, said the spokesman. Assistant U.S. Attorneys Thomas Johnson and Floyd Babbitt have represented the postal service. Complaints charged the nonprofit grocery firm falsely represented its corporate address, the number of letters mailed in an employe-member recruitment campaign and the potential grocery bill savings in nonprofit stores.

While federal negotiations are pending, action has been taken to stop SAGR from operating in Ohio, and attorneys general in Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana are studying the federal case. SAGR literature was mailed to residents throughout the United States, and residents and legal authorities from across the country have inquired about the firm.

OHIO INVOKED its anti-pyramid law in halting SAGR temporarily and has started proceedings for an injunction against the firm, said Kevin Duffy, an assistant state attorney general.

"We alleged in the lawsuit the company was violating Ohio's anti-pyramid sales law," said Duffy.

The Ohio law defines pyramids as businesses in which persons pay for the chance to earn compensation by recruiting new participants in the business, said Duffy. According to SAGR literature, "that's exactly what they were doing," said Duffy, noting the mailings urged recipients to invest money to become employes or members, and earn part of the fees they collected from other employe or member recruits.

Duffy said his office also is negotiating with SAGR. The negotiations could result in allowing SAGR to renew operations in that state, but only if it could do so without functioning as a pyramid, said Duffy. He declined to say if the company structure would permit a legal operation, meeting the requirements of the state law.

ONE OHIO resident invested $1,000 in SAGR, hoping to become a state director and earn the promised $191,000 per year, said Duffy. A state director would recruit lower level employes, who would invest $200 to $800 per year in hopes of earning proportionately lower commissions, according to SAGR pamphlets.

Illinois had been preparing to start a SAGR investigation but dropped the matter at least until the federal suit is resolved, said Assistant Atty. Gen. Anton Makhar, of the consumer fraud division. The Illinois Secretary of State's office has issued written notice to SAGR that the firm is violating state laws governing corporations by failing to file incorporation documents. But SAGR has until Aug. 15 to respond to that notice, and no further action will be taken in the matter before then, said Dale Reynolds of the secretary of state's office.

Wisconsin has written twice to SAGR, requesting information on the structure of the corporation. But the second letter almost certainly was among mail impounded as a result of the U.S. Postal Service complaint, said Assistant Atty. Gen. William Wolford. Wisconsin was "concerned about the large amounts of income" promised in the company literature, Wolford said.

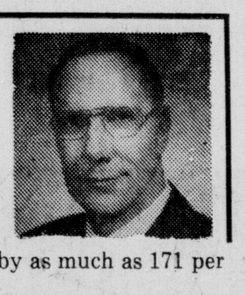
How to pick the best savings account



By Donald F. Morton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

You may think you are well off to have your savings in a commercial bank, but the magazine Consumer Reports suggests you can do better.

The article "How to Pick the Best Savings Account" recognizes that savings accounts and time deposits in thrift institutions and banks are "among the safest investments you can make." Most purchase Federal insurance that covers individual accounts up to $40,000.

But the magazine notes that for several reasons thrift institutions like ours are measurably superior to commercial banks for returns on savings.

First of all, it is a fact, which some savers ignore, that thrift institutions are allowed by law to offer a higher rate of return than banks. The reason is that our institutions have been established to provide funds for residential mortgage loans.

Aside from that, many more commercial banks than savings and loans do not offer the maximum interest rate allowed by law. A Federal Reserve Board study noted that 23 per cent of all bank savings deposits were in accounts "paying a below-ceiling rate of 4½ per cent — and some were at even lower rates," as little as 2 per cent.

More importantly, as Consumer Reports pointed out, S&Ls and savings banks "tend to compute interest in more liberal ways than commercial banks."

The magazine article referred to a Kansas State University study which applied 40 variables in interest-computing policies and found that interest payments in S&Ls and banks varied by as much as 171 per cent.

Here is one way in which returns on savings vary. The Kansas State study discovered a difference of almost 68 per cent on the same annual rate of interest in terms of the methods by which interest was computed.

Thirty per cent of commercial banks, according to a study last year by the American Bankers Association, still paid only on the smallest amount of money in the account during the interest period. This, as Consumer Reports mentions, is the "most punitive" to savers. About 16 per cent of commercial banks used a method of deducting withdrawals from the starting balance of the interest period; this is known as first-in, first-out (FIFO). It is the next disadvantageous way of figuring earned interest. Only about 5 per cent of commercial banks used the method of last-in, first-out (FIFO), which deducts withdrawals from the most recent deposits in the quarter and is therefore less damaging to the depositor.

Payment of interest for the actual number of days the money remains in the account, a day-in day-out concept, provides the highest return for the savers' dollars. It is used by almost 50 per cent of the commercial banks and 60 per cent of insured S&Ls.

There are, of course, many other variables which prompted Consumer Reports to recommend that a saver seek a thrift institution like ours rather than a commercial bank for the highest legal interest rate and the most liberal methods of computing interest.

Crane and Mikva split on Ford's oil price plan

From Roll Call Report

U. S. Representatives Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, cast opposing votes on a resolution to kill one of President Ford's oil price proposals last week. The measure was adopted by a vote of 262-167, with Mikva supporting it and Crane opposing it.

The rejected plan would have begun, Aug. 1, the gradual removal of the controls keeping a $5.25 per barrel ceiling on the price producers can charge for "old" oil — domestic oil from wells in production before 1972.

In the Senate, an amendment was adopted which would extend the Voting Rights Act, scheduled to expire Aug. 6, for seven years. The law provides for federal supervision of local and state elections and is primarily directed at seven Southern states.

Following is a summary of key votes by the Illinois congressional delegation for the period from Jul 17-23. Included are votes by Illinois' two senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, and Northwest suburban congressmen Crane and Mikva.

House

WETLANDS. An amendment to increase this year's federal outlay for acquiring wetlands from $1 million to $10 million, passed 220-203. Wetlands are marsh areas supporting migratory birds and other creatures and also play a role in flood control.

Proponenets argued that unless marshlands are acquired quickly for preservation, they will be lost to developers. One opponent, Rep. Frank Evans, D-Colo., said $1 million was the proper amount "in terms of how much we can afford to go over the budget before we get to the point of a possible veto."

YES: Democrats Mikva, Metcalfe, Russo and Price; Republicans McClory and Madigan.

NO: Republicans Crane, Derwinski, Hyde, Erlenborn, Anderson, Michel, Railsback and Findley; Democrats Murphy, Fary, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Hall, Shipley and Simon.

NOT VOTING: Republican O'Brien.

OIL PRICES. Resolution to kill President Ford's proposal for gradual removal of price controls on oil, adopted 262-167.

Supporters attacked Ford's plan as unfairly weighted toward oil producers. Opponents said the U. S. must take positive steps to end dependence on oil from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countires.

YES: Democrats Mikva, Metcalfe, Murphy, Russo, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Hall, Price and Simon.

NO: Republicans Crane, Derwinski, Hyde, MClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, O'Brien, Michel, Railsback, Findley, Madigan and Shipley.

SEX DISCRIMINATION. A measure to rescind earlier house opposition to Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare requirements that schools sexually integrate most organizations passed 215-178. The vote deleted an and physical education programs, amendment passed two days before by a 211-211 margin.

Supporters said the amendment should be deleted because the HEW rules were written under the dictates of a law passed in 1972. Opponents said HEW bureaucrats exceeded their authority in constructing the rules.

YES: Democrats Mikva, Metcalfe, Russo, Fary, Collins, Rostenkowski,

NO: Percy and Stevenson.

VOTING RIGHTS ACT. Amendment to Voting Rights Act, extending the bill beyond Aug. 6, but shortening the extension to seven years from the 10 years approved earlier by the House, approved 52-42.

Opponents said it was imperative to adopt the House version unamended so that a conference committee and a delay past the Aug. 6 expiration date could be averted.

NO: Percy and Stevenson.

VOTING RIGHTS. Motion to table an amendment to expand coverage of the act to the entire nation, thus going beyond the seven Southern states at which it is now directed.

One supporter of tabling said the amendment contradicted a Supreme Court decision which said the law was applicable only where "exceptional circumstances" existed in restrictions on voting.

YES: Percy and Stevenson.

AN ACTIVE MEMBER of Des Plaines Art Guild for many years, watercolorist Don Ellwanger enjoys painting landscapes, seascapes and even old ghost towns. Featured at right are two examples of his work. In addition to watercolor, the Des Plaines artist also works in pen and ink.

Scenes by watercolorist exist only on paper

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Donald Ellwanger's tranquil harbor scene fascinates onlookers who pause long enough in their gaze to turn to the artist and inquire, "Where was this painted?"

That's simple. The watercolor was conceived and created in the basement studio of Ellwanger's Des Plaines home.

But what most people really want to know is the location of the scene. And that's much more difficult to adequately define.

The painting might remind one of a coastal seaside resort, the opening shot of a travel brochure or a picture from a textbook illustrating the mood of an old whaling village one hundred years ago.

IN SOME respects all three may be right. But persons asking in order to visit the exact spot will be disappointed. The site does not exist. Though certainly one could pretend and let his or her imagination take hold as Ellwanger does for all his paintings.

He is a realist to the extent that the separate objects in his paintings do or at least once did exist, on postcards, travel posters, magazines or old photographs which he has amassed throughout the years.

Ellwanger shifts through his dog-eared collection — "it's like an old man's roll-top desk, I just go through the whole mess until I find what I want" — and takes out little bits and scraps which, like individual pieces of a jigsaw puzzle, just naturally fall into place.

If he is planning, for instance, to do a western scene out of the past, he is careful that everything in his painting reflects that period, including the cowboy's dress.

"They don't exist," said Ellwanger of his watercolors, though his preoccupation with detail and shading fools the viewer into thinking they do.

HAVING CHOSEN lithography as a profession, Ellwanger, now retired, has dabbled in painting since high school. However, only in the last several years has he actively showed his work by participating in local art fairs.

Ellwanger is completely self-taught, starting out in oils before discovering watercolors "which I felt I had a feel for and should pursue."

The other media in which he presently works is pen and ink. Occasionally he will do the same scene both ways, watercolor and pen and ink, though that is the only kind of duplication he will do. All his work is original. He never reproduces it.

Ellwanger approaches art with a careful balance of value and composition.

"With that out of the way, you can use any color scheme, within reason, of course, and it will come out," he said. "I prefer to use subdued tones, neutral shades as opposed to garish color."

So subtly executed is his shading that one might not even notice at first that a painting is entirely executed in off-violet and muted purples.

AND TO MAKE sure everything is in proper perspective, Ellwanger first makes up a very tight and thorough pencil sketch before attempting the painting itself. This trial run is, in fact, so letter perfect, it can stand alone as a miniature work of art.

Agent's CIA diary tells it like it is

by TOM WELLMAN
(A review)

"When I joined the CIA I believed in the need for its existence. After 12 years with the agency I finally understood how much suffering it was causing, that millions of people all over the world had been killed or had had their lives destroyed by the CIA and the institutions it supports. I couldn't sit by and do nothing and so began work on this book."

—Philip Agee, "Inside the Company: CIA Diary"

Last summer, it was Watergate. Today, the swirling, seething scandal in Washington revolves around what has been called "the President's secret army."

The CIA's the topic, and names and rumors fly around it with the intensity of a sudden summer storm. The names are those of John and Robert Kennedy, Michael Harrington, Nelson Rockefeller, Alexander Butterfield and the rest; the rumors encompass assassinations, cover-ups and whatever other headlines grace your morning paper.

The hottest name right now, however, is Philip Agee, a 40-year-old Notre Dame graduate, 12-year CIA veteran of South American activities and now a voluntary exile in Great Britain. His book, "Inside the Company: CIA Diary," is the strongest insider's view yet of the agency.

AGEE'S BOOK was first published several months ago in Great Britain, where it aroused a storm of British editorial concern about CIA activities. U.S. critics of the CIA now have the 640-page book in their hands, following its publication by Stonehill Publishing Co., $9.95.

This book, however, will be a disappointment to readers seeking a spy thriller involving the lusty intrigues of CIA adventurers. Likewise, it will not provide the "smoking gun" for CIA critics to pound the final nail in the CIA's coffin.

Rather, "Inside the Company" is a sometimes mundane but always complete odyssey of one's name, baptism, orientation, involvement, disillusionment and ultimate counter-involvement against the CIA, South American division. (For the CIA foe, however, it is also the complete reference book, much to the horror of CIA officials. Agee has not changed a single name of his fellow CIA agents.

Baptism, for Agee came on the campus of Notre Dame University in South Bend where he, like thousands of students in the late 1950s, was seeking a lucrative and interesting job. For Agee, the CIA recruiter arrived at the right moment, and he signed up.

He blended quickly into the CIA's cult of secrecy and bureaucracy, and quicker than you can say "E. Howard Hunt" he completed training and was off to Ecuador for his first intelligence assignment.

Ecuador, one of the poorest South American countries, was believed to have been in the early 1960s a target for Fidel Castro's subversion. For Agee and for the CIA, footholds, information and control had to be gained within the government, the political parties, the labor unions and the student groups.

AGEE WAS effective in his craft, for during his stay two governments fell. Yet, out of the corner of his eye, Agee saw that the people of Ecuador were no better off than before he arrived.

The same pattern followed in Uruguay, Agee's next assignment. Agee and his men invaded — covertly, of course — every corner of Uruguay's political, cultural, economic and social structure and prevented an overt revolution. Again, as Agee and his men manipulated yet another South American government, Agee was disturbed by the repeated truth; CIA control had not improved the lives of the poor one bit.

Agee does not overwhelm the reader with James Bondian tales of derring-do. Most CIA work does not involve the overthrow of governments; there are papers to be filed, reports to be written, social contacts to be made and rotten bosses to be endured. The mundane usually overwhelms the occasional excitement — and it adds to the sense of realism and truth of Agee's tale.

"Inside the Company" exists on two levels. One is this routine, yet underplayed, recounting of all of the CIA's activities in South America during the 1960s. The second, however, deals with Agee's personal conversion from gung-ho CIA agent to an avowed socialist radical and fierce foe of CIA activities.

AGEE'S INITIAL political instincts are those of a liberal reformer. He is certain that such reforms as the Alliance for Progress are antidotes for the spreading evil of Communism and for the grinding poverty that seems almost habitual in South America.

Isaac Hayes' new album emits the best of 'soul'

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Black music, perhaps more than any other, is successful because of its ability to involve the listener. Whether the music grabs your heart or matches your body's rhythms, you react with it more than you react to it.

A batch of recent releases in the "soul" music category demonstrates how to and how not to make soul music.

Easily the best of the bach is Isaac Hayes' "Chocolate Chip" (Hot Buttered Soul records). Hayes, the successful innovator with his award-winning "Shaft" movie score, hasn't had a new album in some time — mostly because of contract and financial problems with Stax and Columbia records. This is the first record issued on his own, new label distributed by ABC records.

The title song, written in the "Shaft" mold, is an outrageous piece about "the slickest player on the street," a black dude who is a master of con and street-hustle and wealthy to boot. It's Hayes' new single and should make a big impact on radio. The album has an instrumental version of the song, too.

BUT WHILE "Chocolate Chip" makes you move, the rest of the album reaches for the heart and Hayes' low-key, slightly jazzy style makes for some sexy music. It starts with Tony Joe White's "That Loving Feeling" and follows throughout the four ballads written by Hayes. "Body Language" is particularly effective with its emphasis on the bass.

Two other outstanding songs are "I Want to Make Love to You So Bad" which has a Santana feel to the guitar and "I Can't Turn Around" with its fine instrumental close.

Two kings of the falsetto, on the other hand, fail to generate much interest with their new albums — "America Today" by Curtis Mayfield (Curtom records) and "The Hit Man" by Eddie Kendricks (Tamla records).

LIKE HAYES, Mayfield created a classic film score, his being "Superfly." Since that time, though, Mayfield has been in a rut, turning out four albums of decreasing interest. "America Today" leaves you with an empty feel — like you've had too much sweetness without substance.

Mayfield's current style is based on repetition, but it not only exists within the songs but also throughout the album. This leads to boredom for far too much of the album. The album's sole saving grace is "So in Love," a nice ballad punctuated with horns.

Kendricks, in his album, steps back from the hard disco-flavored style that drove his previous albums up the record charts. His high vocal style fares poorly without driving instrumental backups, and it even becomes painful to hear his stretching for some notes on a song like "Skippin' Work Today."

Other than the arrangements and two opening ballads that have enough punch — "If Anyone Can" and "Happy" — the album fails to generate any excitement or admiration and thus becomes easily forgettable.

Other new soul releases include:

"Sex Machine Today" by James Brown (Polydor records). Another album of danceable music by the man who helped make soul music what it is today. Most of it is perfect for the growing disco market. Brown's jabbering with the band is annoying, though.

"The Supremes" (Motown records). A superbly crafted album which lacks only a sense of involvement by the singers. I can't remember any of the songs. Diana Ross is still sorely missed.

"Night Lights Harmony" by the Four Tops (ABC records). Another fine effort from one of my favorite groups. The first side, with uptemp songs like "Seven Lonely Nights" and ballads "Is This the Price?" and "We All Gotta Stick Together," is much better than the second side, which features three songs co-authored by group member Lawrence Payton, who also co-produces. Payton's writing needs to be stronger or else not used.

"Cooley High" (Motown records). This soundtrack contains some of the greatest Motown hits of the sixties. "Dancing in the Street" by Martha and the Vandellas, "Stop. In the Name of Love" and "Baby Love" by the Supremes, "Money" by Barrett Strong and "I Can't Help Myself" and "Reach Out, I'll Be There" by the four Tops are among the 17 hits, plus some incidental film music.

'CIA Diary' a disturbing look at agent activities

The book stall

Slowly, however, he comes to realize that the games of "control and overthrow" that he and his men practice do little to advance the real cause of the South American people. He says the problem is that we were propping up corrupt and narrow governments dedicated to serving U.S. industrial needs. Ultimately, he believes today that only Cuba has been able to carry out the reforms he saw as needed in the early 1960s.

One must depend on the current "Playboy" interview, however, to gain added insights into Agee's character. He doesn't blow his personal cover in "Inside the Company," and it is unfortunate we aren't permitted more insights to how his political and personal thinking changes. His marriage dissolves during his CIA years, but we are given few insights as to whether this affects his political views.

"Inside the Company: CIA Diary" is a deeply disturbing book, for Agee's deeply abiding dedication to completeness outlines an agency too deeply involved in the manipulation and control of foreign governments. To even the most conservative reader, there must be a twinge of revulsion at how meddlesome we are in the affairs of other nations.

BEYOND AGEE's story-telling abilities, however, is a call to action. Agee's solution is to abolish the CIA and forget the "moderate reforms" offered by the liberals of the 1960s. As a socialist, his analysis of the U.S. is that for its own sake, it should leave alone smaller and poorer nations. If they "go Communist," that may be for the best, Agee contends, if land reform, income redistribution and the betterment of the lives of the peasants follow.

As if this analysis, from a former agent, isn't enough to shake the CIA, consider the fact that Agee's book could encourage other ex-agents to tell all about their activities. We will be fortunate, however, if future storytellers cover the CIA with such completeness and thoroughness, yet with such a provocative and disturbing analysis of what's wrong with our CIA.

"MONEY IS LOVE"
by RICHARD LOVE
Dial Press, $8.95

Sex is but a mere hobby compared to the American obsession with money, asserts Richard Condon who expresses these ideas in his newest novel, "Money Is Love."

Using a wild, satirical approach to his 12th novel, Condon relates his unusual view through the eyes of a collection of off-beat angels who meet every few thousand years to update the definition of sin.

The story strays from reality soon after the primary characters are introduced, but Condon, who also wrote "Manchurian Candidate," leads the reader to even more unbelievable heights.

Eugene Quebaro is mugged and killed at precisely the time the angels from both the upper and lower houses are seeking a pawn to begin their study of a mysterious thing called money. The angels, meeting in their Joint Commission for the Evaluation of Sin, must find some answers if they are to carry out their duties.

QUEBARO BECOMES the object of a game to establish the limits of a man's morality when the stakes are high. Both teams from the upper and lower houses meet with misfortune, however, partly because of the intervention of a third force, the Greek god Zeus.

Zeus is a bumbling, lusty god who ineptly disguises himself as a municipal judge, a mosquito, taxi driver, waiter and whatever suits his needs as he interferes with the experiment.

The angels are thwarted because Quebaro knows nothing about money. His intelligent former wife, Carlotta, is the true force behind his immense success as an insurance salesman, and he is helpless without her.

The angels realize they need Carlotta. She agrees to leave her life on earth if she can take her wealth with her. The angels agree.

Meanwhile, Quebaro laments his huge loss in the dinner plate market, pouring out his heart to one of the disguised angels in the experiment. "I can't make money, so how can she respect me. Money is the only measuring stick left to us. And the actual, factual fact is that if a woman can't respect a man, she can't love him."

Zeus, celebrating his own victories after interfering in the early exercise, gives his followers a simple response when they ask if the money question has been answered.

"That is the easiest thing in the world to define," he says. "Money is everybody's pocket mirror."

Condon makes his points well. Though his symbolism may be too outlandish for some readers, the book is far enough from reality to be fun without reaching into the realm of science-fiction.

A lesson on corruption

by PAT ADAM
(A review)

To those for whom Teapot Dome is only a name in a history book, "The Gang's All Here," currently playing at the Forum Theater in Summit, can be educational as well as entertaining.

It's the thinly disguised story of Warren Harding, whose administration of the early 1920s is described in pre-Watergate records as "the most corrupt in U.S. history." The central character, Griffith P. Hastings, is a small-town Ohio newspaper editor who went from reporting the news to making it as President, via the Senate. (Harding followed the same trail.)

Included are all the ingredients of which we are told politics was made in the days before radio, and television brought the messy game right into our living rooms. The smoke-filled hotel room where a Presidential deal is made. The late-night poker game with cronies, complete with girls and illegal booze. The friends from back home for whom the country is "one big green poker table." And they intend to cash in all the chips they can.

THERE'S ALSO the loyal wife who realizes too late the results of pushing too hard. And the final and fatal "illness" of the President after he learns the bitter lesson that with friends like his, he needs no enemies. They have brought him to the brink of impeachment.

Dana Andrews portrays the genial, unpretentious and ineffectual Senator whose coterie of friends propel him into the nation's highest office, a position for which he feels himself unfit at first but comes to enjoy (sound familiar). Andrews' Hastings is a likeable sort, capable of wit, yet he conveys as well the man's weakness and dependence on others.

His wife, Mary Todd, plays Frances Hastings, wife of the President. She wears both part and stunning '20s wardrobe well.

CHIEF AMONG those who plot to make Hastings President — and himself attorney general — is Bob Thompson as Walter Rafferty. The essence of the wily politician, he probably gives the best all-round performance of the show.

Hastings' other cronies are played convincingly by Wally Engelhardt as Joshua Loomis, Secretary of the Interior who triggers an oil lease scandal; William Munchow as Charlie Webster, would-be President maker who joins with Rafferty to rip off the Veterans Bureau; William Koza as the wise-cracking Axel Maley; and Sidney Breese as the President's personal physician.

Mike Ferrall appears as the somewhat pompous Judge Corriglione, who goes along with the gang in their immoral if not illegal activities until the oil leases which he cannot stomach. For this he nearly becomes a scapegoat.

TONY MOCKUS gives a sympathetic portrayal of the President's only real friend, his aide Bruce Bellingham. And Talky Blank is excellent as the hulking Higgy, who turns to investigating the Hastings administration when he fails to be dealt a hand in the political poker game.

In lesser roles are Joe Garber, Bob Zrna, John Boruff, Amy Silvestre, Melissa Martin, Dave Pomatto and Harlan Hogan.

The sets are very well designed. I liked particularly the elegance of both the Executive Suite of the White House and the Presidential Suite of the San Francisco hotel where Hastings plays his last cards.

"The Gang's All Here" continues through Aug. 24.

Hilton looks good, feels good

Night out
by Genie Campbell

Through sheer repetition I've come to know JIMMY DAMON is synonymous with a good time. And unlike many Chicago-based vocalists, he always comes on with a new show.

We've seen him change from a formal Frank Sinatra style, complete with tuxedo and bow tie, to a more casual, sexy look that included a flashey-blue jumpsuit, to a combination of the two he's chosen for his present engagement at the TOP OF THE TOWERS.

He wears a tuxedo jumpsuit, no bow tie, and at his side are two dancing girls called "THE DAMON SISTERS," Gayle and Debbie. And they really are sisters. One has long red hair and the other blond.

Some people might say he doesn't need the girls. Truthfully he doesn't. Damon's powerful voice requires no trimmings. Yet the girls add extra sparkle and spirit to the show and also, a certain amount of variety through an assortment of different costumes that fit right into Damon's repertoire.

It's the first time I've heard the Captain and Tennile's hit, "Love Will Keep Us Together," on a nightclub stage. And I liked it.

Yet take away all the glitter and Jimmy remains at his best belting out smooth, lyrical ballads such as "Memories" and "Behind Closed Doors." His spoken introductions to all his songs are fresh and punchy and he's the only vocalist I know who regularly sings "I've Got to Be Me" and gets away with it.

Returning to the Arlington Park Hilton after a month's absence is like walking out of night into day. Racing season and Jimmy Damon go well together. Almost every table was filled opening night Tuesday.

And the Hilton Corp. has been busy redecorating all over the hotel. The gold-speckled plastic furniture has been permanently removed from the lobby which is now showing off a bright colorful scheme of warm oranges and reds. What an improvement!

And the Carousel dining room on the first floor now lives up to its name. A mock merry-go-round holds center attention.

Upstairs a start has been made. New carpeting has been laid and the stage extended. It looks good. It feels good. And I'm ready to go back for more.

And Hurray! Arlington Park Theatre will reopen the week of Aug. 19 with David Lonn retained as producer.

In the meantime, go see Jimmy Damon, who is entertaining in the penthouse restaurant through Aug. 23. Doing a tremendous job in backup is the JIMMY NUZZO ORCHESTRA.

Comedians booked into the Durante Room during August for the regularly scheduled Saturday comedy nights include JOHN BYNER, MILT KAMEN, GENE BAYLOS, JAN MURRAY and HENNY YOUNGMAN.

Comic Alan King at his caustic best

by BARRY SIGALE
(A review)

Alan King is one of the few comics around who can persuade an audience to laugh their cares away while sending them home with something new to worry about.

The Ralph Nadar of comedy has always attempted to bare waste and inequities and stand up for the little man. About the only cause he hasn't joined is the one being led by conservationists.

"I'll get to trees and birds later," he says. "I have to take care of people first."

For people who traveled to the east coast while their luggage went west, for those who ordered medium rare but had to swallow well done, King is their kind of guy. The same things happened to him, too.

PERFORMING THROUGH Sunday at Mill Run Theatre in Niles, King is a vertibale one-man gang against flakey politicians and phony company images. "We must disturb the balance of things," he says.

King's professional world may not have much balance, though, despite his success on television. He used to be one of the most popular comics on late-night talk shows but now hosts only an occasional special on ABC-TV.

Possibly because of this, King played his Monday night opening to a half-empty house. Ticket sales were so dismal, in fact, that no programs were printed, raising doubts that King and singer Lainie Kazan would make it through the week.

But the show had to go on and actually was one of the best in-the-round this year.

King was hilarious, Miss Kazan captivating with songs of love and love lost. She wore a fiery red dress which revealed the ample cleavage for which she is noted. She has a superb voice.

KING AS headliner puffed on a large cigar and tucked his thumb into his tuxedo cummerbund in his familiar way. His routine, which smacked of a personal grudge against those who have done him wrong, struck a responsive chord from the audience.

He made the people laugh at what he called the absurdity of it all, that Delta Airlines has a flight leaving every half hour to Cincinnati while flights from New York to Los Angeles go begging for customers.

"Can you see all the people saying, 'Before I die I have to see Paris, Rome and Cincinnati!' "

He spent 15 minutes deploring the insurance industry for making the American people believe they are "worth more dead than alive."

At the same time he became a promoter of men's rights because, "it is a woman who gets all the money."

KING CHASTISED medical specialists for seeking the big buck at the expense of the average man.

"And what do you do, sir?"

"I'm a right nostril man."

Lest he be remembered only for pointing out problems and not offering solutions, King had advice for the impatient patient who is booked into a doctor's waiting room with a dozen other persons. Simply cough in the face of each visitor and in the nurse's kisser, too.

You'll receive prompt attention. And it's attention that Alan King and Miss Kazan also deserve. Hopefully they'll last through Sunday.

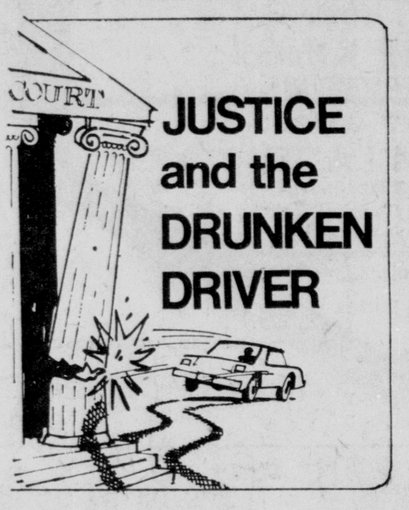
Implied consent hard to enforce bert LaPlante told the Herald. "The purpose of the law is good. But, when it gets down to dotting the 'i's' and crossing the 't's', it gets complicated."

SULLIVAN SAID that he first read the law in 1972 to determine what a state prosecutor must prove to admit breathalyzer evidence or to win an implied consent case. "When I got to 23 (separate requirements), I stopped," he said.

Attorney John Clarke of Arlington Heights estimated that the law contains more than 100 loopholes.

Clarke said that testimony from a physician that the accused drunken driver was using drugs can prove that "he was not under the influence of alcohol but under the influence of medication."

"It's harder to give implied consent rights to a defendant who is drunk than the Miranda rights (against self incrimination in criminal cases)," an assistant state's attorney said. Without the detailed implied consent warning, a charge of breathalyzer refusal falls apart in court.



"I win a lot of cases on technicalities. I happen to follow the law very closely," attorney Alan Lapping of Chicago told the Herald.

Clarke maintains a file that contains information about "the technical aspects of drunken driving."

LOW DRUNKEN driving conviction rates and failure to win implied consent convictions have discouraged local police and have failed to remove drunken drivers from the road, police officials told the Herald.

"I know for a fact that DWI arrests are down," Lapping said. "In the suburbs, smaller departments don't have the manpower to devote to DWI arrests.

In 1971, prior to the current implied consent law, Chicago police reported nearly 15,000 DWI arrests. Only 7,000 were arrested in 1973, statistics show.

Although no local police departments have comparison drunk driving arrest totals, Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy said that "time-consuming" requirements for completing a DWI arrest have reduced the number of DWI arrests in Schaumburg. "Under the law, it takes 150 minutes (two and a half hours) to make a DWI arrest. The law is not really favorable for working with," he said.

"To help reduce the number of drunken drivers, there should be more arrests," Sullivan said. "But, police departments cannot afford the time to arrest that many. The biggest thing that should be changed is the implied consent law."

Sec. of State Michael Howlett's advisory panel on legislation has proposed mandatory revocation of a drivers license for breathalyzer test refusal. Other proposals would reduce the number of "tests" from two to one and would define driving with an alcohol level of .10 or more as a crime "per se."

Howlett and Finley have started plans to streamline record-keeping that leads to license revocation or suspension.

RECENTLY A COMPUTER printout of implied consent hearing results that Finley ordered was compared with Howlett's license suspension files after the January to April study. The comparison showed that four court-ordered suspensions were not processed by officials in Howlett's office. Finley said the errors were traced to misspelling of driver's names or incorrect license numbers.

"We are trying to make sure that those that were supposed to go to the secretary of state do in fact go there," Finley said. "It's complicated and it goes through so many hands. But, if we tighten up, it will help.

"We recognized when we first came in here that it was a problem," Finley said.

Disposition of Implied Consent Hearings

	Licenses ordered suspended	Licenses not suspended	Percent not suspended
Dist. 2	204	109	31%
Dist. 3	135	88	39%
County-wide	726	555	43%

Statistics above were compiled by Circuit Court Clerk Morgan M. Finley. The sampling was taken during the four-month period from January to April 1975.

	Licenses ordered suspended	Prosecution Dropped	Licenses not suspended	Percentage not suspended
Dist. 2	44	13	40	47%

Statistics were compiled during the Herald study. Statistics could not be compiled from Dist. 3 because implied consent records were unavailable at the time of the study.

Law's premise: driving is a privilege

Illinois' implied consent law went into effect in October 1972. It operates under the premise that driving is a privilege granted by the state, and persons given that privilege "imply their consent" to submit to breathalyzer testing if arrested for drunk driving.

Refusal to take the breathalyzer tests can result in a 90-day suspension of a driver's license for the first offense and up to six months for any succeeding offenses committed in a five-year period.

A driver comes under the umbrella of the implied consent law as soon as he is charged with drunk driving. The driver has 90 minutes from the time of his arrest to decide if he will submit to testing.

During the 90 minutes he must be read nine rights, be given a copy of the rights to read himself, and be allowed to consult an attorney or any other person by telephone.

After the 90 minutes if a defendant agrees to testing, two breathalyzer readings must be taken not less than 15 minutes apart. the tests must be given with 2½ hours of the arrest.

A reading of .10 on the breath analysis is considered a presumption of driving under the influence of alcohol.

The driver, if he is detained in custody, may ask police to take him to a "location within the county" where he may have an additional chemical blood analysis test performed.

For those who refuse to take the two breathalyzer tests after the 90 minute wait, a 90-day driver's license suspension will be ordered unless a petition for a civil hearing is requested within 28 days.

The hearing considers only whether a person was arrested according to the provisions of the state drunk driving laws, whether the officer had grounds to believe the driver was operating the car while intoxicated, whether the driver was properly informed of his rights, and whether the driver refused to take the tests.

The law prohibits a driver's refusal to submit to testing to be considered in the trial of the drunk driving charge.

Technicalities gain 3 acquittals

Three drivers. Three charges of refusal to submit to breathalyzer testing. Three acquittals and no driver's license suspension.

The attorney was Paul H. Knott of Arlington Heights.

The verdicts — two by Associate Judge David J. Shields and one by Associate Judge John M. Breen Jr. — followed the filing of the same, one-page motion by Knott for each client. The petition, which demanded an implied consent hearing, briefly agrued three implied consent law technicalities:

- That the arrest was not "in conformance" with requirements of the Illinois Vehicle Code. The arresting police — two from Palatine and one from Wheeilng — referred in the drunken driving tickets to "driving while under the influence of liquor or drugs," not the correct charge of "driving while intoxicated."
- That police lacked "reasonable grounds to believe that the defendant was driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor." An arrest ticket must show that police had a reason — either detection of an alcohol odor or the driver's conduct — for requesting a breathalyzer test.
- That police failed to tell Knott's client that refusal to submit to breathalyzer testing could lead to a 90-day license suspension.

Knott filed the motion Feb. 7, 1973 in the implied consent case of Irving Alquist, 3008 Thrush Ln., Rolling Meadows. The arrest ticket charged that Alquist "was involved in a collision, was driving on the wrong side of the road, had an odor of alcohol on breath and was unable to stand without support."

State prosecutors dropped the implied consent charge Feb. 15, 1973 without presenting evidence before Shields. Alquist pleaded guilty to a plea bargained, reduced charge of reckless driving, not drunken driving, was fined $250 and was sentenced to one year of probation.

About a month later, Knott filed the same petition for Paul Grossman, 906 Wheeling Rd., Mount Prospect. Police charged Grossman with drunken driving and refusal to take a breath test after an "accident investigation. found subject staggering, speech slurred, and subject stated his drinking caused the accident," the arrest ticket states.

Grossman was convicted of drunken driving by Breen June 21, 1973. State prosecutors agreed to "discontinue" the implied consent charge, although persons can be convicted at a separate hearing of drunken driving and implied consent refusal.

State prosecutors "did not object" to Knott's petition Sept. 18, 1973 during the implied consent hearing of Kim Denton, 950 Elizabeth, Wheeling. Shields ruled that Denton's driver's license "not be suspended," court records show. Denton also was acquitted of drunken driving.

Knott, who was unavailable for comment, was the most active defender of drunken drivers in The Herald's study of Northwest suburban traffic court.

Attorney Donald Norman used the Knott motion to win an implied consent case March 24, 1973. Norman, who also was acting Wheeling village prosecutor, has shared law offices with Knott.

State prosecutors dropped implied consent charges against Norman's client, John Harty, 204 N. Brighton, before Associate Judge John J. Limperis in Arlington Heights court. Harty was convicted of drunken driving and was fined $300.

Judges propose changes to eliminate loopholes

Here is how police officials, judges and attorneys assess the Illinois implied consent law:

- Third District Presiding Judge Anton A. Smigiel: "The law is very difficult. I think there are too many demands in the law. Police say it is difficult to enforce and my statement would be it's a little bit too technical."
- Associate Judge Charles Alfano, Dist. 2: "It's going to need some minor changes. It's a little bit cumbersome, but I won't say it's unworkable. Ultimately you get justice."
- State Police Court Officer George Huizenga: "We have more hassles with it. The officers have too much paperwork with it."
- Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case: "My thinking is that it's a defense attorney's dream. The only way out is to amend the law."
- Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy: "Everything is written from the defendant's standpoint. It's this 90 minutes of giving too much time to the defendant to make up his mind."
- Hoffman Estates Police Chief John O'Connell: "It's like anything else written by a human being. It's going to have loopholes."
- Robert H. Reeder, general counsel at the Northwestern University Traffic Institute: "The law is too complicated. There is too much red tape in the present statute."
- Circuit Court Clerk Morgan M. Finley: "You can see the inequity of it. A guy goes in and doesn't take the test and he gets only a three month suspension, but if another person takes the test and is found guilty, he gets a one year revocation. Technically, he's followed the law, but he is penalized more severely."
- Defense attorney Henry C. Szala: "I don't particularly like it because it gives the police a strong weapon."
- Defense attorney Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the Northwest Suburban Bar Association's committee on the judiciary: "I don't think it's working. It requires technical and legal judgment calls by the police officer that he may not be qualified to make. I think experience is showing there are amendments needed in the law."

Eldorado Coupe. One of the world's most exciting cars.

Eldorado more than whispers its great Cadillac heritage with the great profile for 1975. Experience the control and maneuverability of front-wheel drive (especially on slippery road surfaces). Dazzling new trim styling and interior decor choices, as well as new door panel inserts of hand-carved gunstock design keep Eldorado excitement at high pitch.

The exciting Eldorado is also available as a convertible.

Fleetwood Brougham. One of the world's great sedans.

New touches of interior elegance such as shirred Monticello velour heightens the effect of Brougham's traditional roominess.

For 1975, reading lamps on both passenger and driver's side and an AM/FM signal-seeking radio are standard.

Coupe de Ville, America's favorite.

With those sleek Coupe de Ville lines, accented by a lower front end and the private quarter window, the Coupe de Ville for 1975 is a new version of the most popular luxury car of them all. The youthful flair that characterizes this American standard for the world is equally evident in its newly standard Eldorado engine.

Dow suffers 1st '75 monthly loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 0.15 point Thursday and the stock market finished the month of July with its first monthly loss of the year.

The Dow Jones, ahead nearly seven points at one time, declined at the end to 831.51. It had gained 6.80 points Wednesday. For the month, the closely watched average fell 47.48 points, the first monthly loss since December.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index slipped 0.08 to 88.75 for the day and 6.36 for the month. The average price of a New York Stock Exchange common share decreased by one cent.

ADVANCES, however, topped declines, 767 to 553, among the 1,791 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled only 14,540,000 shares, down from 16,150,000 traded Wednesday. It was the slowest turnover since 14,317,980 shares were traded April 8.

Several stocks gained ground after reporting higher earnings. Timken rose 1-3/8 to 36, Menasce 5/8 to 1-5/8, Chicago Pneumatic ½ to 26-7/8, and World Airways 1/8 to 4-5/8.

Southern Co. led the actives, off ¼ to 12-5/8 on 257,400 shares, including a block of 180,000 shares at 12¾. Lubrizol followed off 3 to 44½ on 150,800 shares, including a block of 122,100 shares. The issue lost 2-5/8 Wednesday and company officials said they knew of no reason for the decline.

XEROX WAS the third most active issue, up 5/8 to 61-7/8 an 140,200 shares. The company, which recently got out of the mainframe computer business, reached a settlement with the Federal Trade Commission on an antitrust suit by agreeing to a revised consent order.

Prices closed little changed in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share finished unchanged. Volume totaled 1,748,000 shares, compared with 1,740,000 traded Wednesday.

Area auto dealers to meet on strike

Chicago area auto dealers, hit by a mechanics' strike nearly one month ago, will meet this morning in Oak Brook to discuss contract bargaining strategy.

The 9 a.m. meeting at the Sheraton Oak Brook Hotel is slated by the Employers Assn. of Greater Chicago. The group represents 281 new car dealers in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The dealer meeting follows the July 25 rejection of a new contract offer by members of Local 701 of the International Assn. of Machinists. The work stoppage by some 4,000 area auto mechanics started July 2. The workers' contract expired June 30.

Pay and fringe benefits are among the issues in the dispute. Dealers sought to eliminate the traditional split with mechanics of hourly repair charges after the mechanic has logged the equivalent of 40 hours work during a week.

Polio ancient disease; found in mummies

I had an uncle born in 1867 who was slightly crippled and walked with a limp. It has been said he had polio when he was 11 years old. Was polio around at that time, and are polio and infantile paralysis or poliomyelitis one and the same disease? If not, what is the difference and what causes each? My uncle was not paralyzed in any way, but one leg was slightly shorter than the other.

The doctor says
by Lawrence E. Lamb

There are many causes for a short leg and certainly not all short legs are caused by polio. So, I can't say if that was your uncle's problem or not.

But, yes, polio has been around a long time. There is even evidence of it in old Egyptian mummies from centuries ago. And, it can occur without causing any paralysis at all. That was one of the problems in unraveling its cause. Many people with the disease only had a bout of digestive trouble or "summer flu." Others can have widespread paralysis and end up having deformities.

Polio, poliomyelitis and infantile paralysis are all names for the same disease, and the disease is caused by a virus. I think the term infantile paralysis is unfortunate because the disease is not limited to infants. It can strike down adults, too. The disease can be prevented by immunization.

I AM SORRY to say that this disease, once apparently conquered, has a chance of resurgence. Why? Because brilliant medical advances are not enough. The public has to have enough will to use the knowledge provided to them by medical science. Public indifference has led to many children and some adults not being immunized.

From time to time I am concerned because many people think the total responsibility for health rests with the medical profession. The truth is that many other groups have an equal or greater responsibility. The failure to get the public to use such advantages as immunization against polio is a failure of the social scientists' area. The medical sciences can do wonders, but then the segments of our society that have the responsibility for public education and encouraging public use often drop the ball.

It is time that the responsibility for many of these health failures is put where they belong. That is not on the back of the busy doctor but those segments of society responsible for social action. And, closely related to this is the behavior of the public itself.

There has long been ample evidence of the harmful effects of cigarette smoking. The medical profession has done a first class job in bringing out facts and providing the knowledge. The public has been slow in using this information. Is this medical care failure? Certainly not. It is a failure of our society and our means to motivate people to do what needs to be done for their health.

Raid survivors charge cops erred

Attorneys representing survivors of the 1969 police raid on a Black Panther Party apartment say they have police documents detailing 70 instances of illegal actions by Chicago police.

Attorneys G. Flint Taylor and Jeffrey Haas, who represent survivors of the raid in which Black Panther leader Fred Hampton was killed, asked U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry for permission to give the documents to Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey for his investigation of police spying.

Taylor and Haas received the documents from the police department because of a lawsuit the survivors of the raid have filed against the city.

Hefner hutch won't close

The 74-room Chicago Playboy mansion will not be closed, despite budget cutbacks being made by Playboy head Hugh Hefner.

Hefner has ordered that the mansion remain open and staffed by a "skeleton staff," contradicting an announcement by a Playboy executive earlier this week that the house would be closed and possibly sold.

Other budget cuts announced this week do remain in effect, however, including the announcement that the "Big Bunny," Hefner's private DC-9 jet will be sold.

Crops good – but need rain

Illinois farmers need rain in order to ensure bumper crops of corn and soybeans this fall, but University of Illinois officials say they still expect good harvests.

Dry weather was reported to be a problem in parts of far southern and northern Illinois. Crops in east central Illinois are reported to be doing well because of regular rains and warm weather.

Farmers in Iowa this week reported drought conditions which may cut into the harvest in that state. Agricultural experts from the University of Illinois said in their weekly report, "It is that time of the year when Illinois farmers have done everything they can for this year's crop except worry. From now on weather will determine what happens."

Illinois briefs

Percy urges home bill

Illinois Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy has introduced a bill designed to curb mismanagement of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development low- and moderate-income housing programs.

Percy said the legislation, called the Home Buyers and Home Owners Protection Act, will guarantee all homes with federally-insured mortgages against structural defects for five years and provide legal and home counseling services and an insurance program to help homeowners meet mortgage payments in cases of financial hardship.

Home officials will sue

Officials of a home for the emotionally disturbed in Maine will sue the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services for slander because of charges the department made that children were mistreated there.

Neil Saxner, assistant director of Elan Five, said charges by Mary Lee Leahy, director of the state department, are "totally absurd" and that the corporation which runs the home will sue the department.

Eleven wards of the state were withdrawn from the home this week. Mrs. Leahy said she removed them, but Saxner said they were asked to leave because Elan officials were angry at the attitude of Illinois officials.

Elan homes treat emotionally disturbed teen-agers, many of whom have been rejected by other institutions because they are difficult to handle.

Sues for Teamster pension

A suburban Summit man has challenged, in federal court, Teamster's Union pension rules which have disqualified him from a pension.

Edward B. Goss, 62, filed suit in U.S. District Court Wednesday charging that he was unfairly forced to forfeit his pension after 34 years of service. The suit challenges the bylaws of the fund, which require a person to have uninterrupted 20 years of service between specific dates.

Goss said he joined the Teamster's Union in 1936 and remained a member until 1965. He rejoined the union in 1971, but according to union rules is not eligible for a pension because his years of continuous service are counted from 1971.

One-time rural 4-H clubs make transition to suburbs

Once primarily a rural organization, 4-H clubs have made the transition from the farm to serve city and suburban youth as well.

Despite the apparent differences in lifestyles between the country and the city, 4-H Clubs themselves have not changed very much in concept, said Merlyn Heyen, 4-H program leader for Chicago and Cook County.

"The basic difference between the rural 4-H club and the suburban 4-H club is almost totally in the type of projects attempted," Heyen said. "Once you equalize that factor there is almost no difference." Heyen said all projects attempted by 4-H members, whether they be from a list of over 100 approved topics given out by the organization or a project thought up by the membee or club itself, must meet minimum 4-H standards. He said these standards are the same in the city as in the country, and it is up to the individual to decide which project is suitable for his area.

IN THE SUBURBS, where it is often impractical or impossible to work with large farm animals, 4-H clubbers are able to work in projects involving smaller animals or pets.

"The main difference in our program out here is that you don't have your traditional farm-style livestock," said Gary Deverman, director of the 4-H program in north Cook County. "We have more kids in skill and hobby type projects along with many in career projects."

Deverman said suburban animal projects usually involve dogs, cats and horses. Classes are given in animal care, led by committees of professional club members.

Gardening projects of all types are also growing in popularity, Deverman said. Conservation, home economics and arts and crafts projects also have been well received by suburban club members.

All 4-H members in year-round clubs are expected to exhibit their project after it is finished This may be done almost anywhere the public is able to view the project, but is usually done at a 4-H fair.

DEVERMAN said most people falsely believe that most of the 4-H enrollment is in rural areas.

"The biggest enrollments is where the kids are," he said. "Cook County has the largest 4-H enrollment in the state."

Heyen said about 55 full-time clubs exist in the Northwest suburban area. In addition, there are many short-term clubs which study or work on one project before disbanding. Most clubs average 12 to 15 members but the number varies according to the project.

4-H is open to all youth who are at least 9 but not yet 19 years old on Jan. 1.

North Cook County 4-H Fair opening

Greased pig and watermelon seed spitting contests, entertainment and project judging will highlight the North Cook County 4-H Fair Friday through Sunday at Kelsey road and Northwest Highway, Barrington.

The fair is the culmination of a year of projects for 4-H members, said Gary Deverman, director of the 4-H program in north Cook County. More than 1,300 projects will be judged against standards set up at the beginning of the projects and given grades of "A," "B," or "C."

Square dancing will complete Friday's activities as the Rainbow Ramblers and the Glenview Squares dance to the banjo music of Jim Denno at 9 p.m. Saturday will feature rock music and dancing with Flashback at 8 p.m.

No admission will be charged for the fair, but there will be a parking fee of $2 per day or $3 for all three days.

9 Scouts earn way to western ranch

Nine Boy Scouts from the Northwest Suburban Council and the Northwest Chicago area recently spent 10 days hiking at the Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base, located in the Sangre de Cristo range of the Rocky Mountains.

Attending the base were: Ken Terrinoni, Mark and Mike Palmer, Paul Mattke, Jim Trevor, Neal Cleghorn, Frank Carter, Tom Nisson and Tom Schwinbeck.

Before hitting the trail, the Scouts received training in wilderness camping and cookery, orienting, backpacking, hiking and conservation. The Scouts were on their own after the training, hiking between 50 and 80 miles in 10 days.

The Chicago area Scouts earned their way to Philmont by selling fertilizer.

Herald hustler gets cue from Mosconi

by JIM COOK

The real "Jaws" invaded Chicago Wednesday on the eve of the 10th annual U.S. Open Billiards Tournament, Aug. 4-9 at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

The "Great White," of course, is snow-capped Willie Mosconi, 15-time world champion and Billiards Congress of Americal Hall of Famer at 62.

The press was summoned with the promise that anyone defeating Mosconi would be rewarded with an engraved cue stick. And like Captain Ahab with his flimsy harpoon against Moby Dick, the media was dropped one-by-one into Mosconi's green felt fish tank.

Armed with only their choice of games, the reporters, writers and broadcasters tested Willie's vulnerability in straight pool, "eight-ball" and "nine-ball," never once penetrating the smile of velvet, silky wave of white hair or the win column.

An early arrival, I was granted practice time on the sea of slate before the ultimate in pool sharks stepped to the table.

"You look like a hustler to me," Willie tried to relax me as the sweat dripped off the end of my stick. "What's your game?"

I had seen Mosconi shoot several times before — always flawlessly — and knew his main strength was 14.1 pocket billiards ... a game of accuracy, shot selection and positioning. With a record high run (consecutive balls made) of 526 in a single turn at the table, 14 would seem like a yawn for him.

"Nine-ball," I proclaimed without trying to surrender before the balls were racked. I figured this game of rotation with the person sinking the "nine" the winner was the most luck-determining game of "slop" pool available.

Electing to break, I watched the seven ball funnel through one of the corner pockets and hunted for the one.

Plunk, plunk, went the one and two balls, but my positioning for the three was pathetic. A tough-angle shot, the three ball caromed aimlessly off the cushion as Willie's eyes twinkled at the thought of running out the game.

"You should have played it in the side," he belatedly helped. "You just snatched defeat from the jaws of victory."

"I just wanted you to get a shot this rack," I laughed back. Too bad he wasn't as sympathetic.

He promptly devoured the remaining balls with a touch that would have made King Midas jealous.

"Enjoyed playing with you," he said reaching for my hand that had long re-encased my cue stick. "If you'd have made that three ball, you'd have been in business."

Eighteen more consoling handshakes followed a brilliant display of marksmanship by the "Great White" until his nearly-satisfied appetite asked, "Anybody else?"

In an instant, I had the balls re-racked as he took his turn to break. "I guess I owe you a game for using your cue," he said referring to the fact that his had broken earlier and he picked up mine.

The balls splattered, but nothing fell. "There they are," he offered in no-excuse fashion.

Most noticeable was the elusive "nine" positioned dangerously close to one of the pockets. Converting it, even out of rotation, was a winner.

The one, two and three balls disappeared into pockets as the cue ball drew back into perfect shape behind the four and in direct line with the nine.

"He's getting greedy now," Willie informed the audience as he sensed my plan.

Rule No. 1 in the billiard playbook is "never shoot a combination when you have a straight-in shot."

But rules are made to be broken and I have a new cue stick to prove it. That and the thrill of beating the "Great White Pool Shark."

Stars draw battle plan for Steelers

A tip on the eventual victor should come in the early moments of the annual contest between football's Super Bowl champions, this time the Pittsburgh Steelers, and the College All-Stars tonight at Soldier Field in Chicago.

John McKay of Southern California, coaching the All-Stars for the second time, gave the clue for the national television audience.

"If we can't protect the passer, we'll have very little chance," he said. "If we can't run it'll be almost impossible to protect the passer because they'll know he's going to pass and just tee off on him."

Obviously, oddsmakers figured the Steelers would get to the passer quickly, and stop the Stars running too, since Pittsburgh was made a 17-point favorite to rack up the 30th triumph for the pros in the contest. The Stars have won nine games, but the pros have won the last 10 meetings.

Cubs 'squeeze' past Cardinals

Jerry Morales doubled home Rick Monday and Manny Trillo's bases-loaded squeeze bunt scored Jose Cardenal to break a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning Thursday and propel the Chicago Cubs and rookie Paul Reuschel to a 5-3 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Rick Monday walked to lead off the Cubs' eighth and Bill Madlock sacrificed him to second. After Cardenal drew an intentional pass, Morales drilled a double to left center, scoring Monday with the winning run. Pete LaCock was then walked intentionally to reload the bases and Trillo executed a perfect suicide squeeze, scoring Cardenal with the insurance run.

The Cubs had scored three runs in the second off rookie Harry Rasmussen. Cardenal walked, stole second and scored on Trillo's single. Steve Swisher then hit his first homer of the season, scoring Trillo.

Dog arrives and attitude changes

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

It's time to confess.

I was wrong. Dead wrong. I admit it.

There was a time, and not so very long ago, when I scoffed at the dog lover.

There was no way, I stubbornly insisted, that I'd ever pamper a pet. No commitment to a dog. Never. Man's best friend would have to look elsewhere.

How wrong I was. When I finally yielded, the change was swift and dramatic.

It took exactly one day — maybe even less — with a new puppy to swing me over to the dog's side.

They get to you, don't they? If you own a dog, you know what I mean. I'm hooked, really hooked. People can learn a lot from a dog's devotion.

This tiny bundle of fur, this totally dependent creature, gives her loyalty and friendship for nothing more than a word of praise or a scratch on the neck.

The bills in the mail or irate calls from Little League parents don't seem nearly as troublesome now when the puppy leaps to greet me. The dog has replaced the gin as therapy in stress situations.

Although you inherit the love of a puppy right from the start, the dog spends its entire life trying to earn your love.

Don't get me wrong. It hasn't been an easy introduction to the world of dogs. It's been quite a transition from the world of goldfish. This is a whole new ball game.

First of all, dog enthusiasts in the office advised against buying a puppy around Christmas because of the holiday turmoil and the poor weather for outdoor training.

The Miniature Schnauzer, a tiny black beauty, arrived just before Christmas.

So much for following advice.

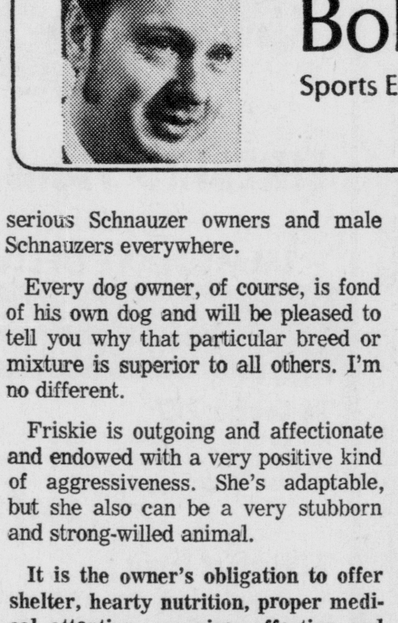
Friskie (note the original name) is not for breeding or show, so the ears aren't cropped and she already has been spayed, probably putting her on the black (no pun intended) list of serious Schnauzer owners and male Schnauzers everywhere.

Every dog owner, of course, is fond of his own dog and will be pleased to tell you why that particular breed or mixture is superior to all others. I'm no different.

Friskie is outgoing and affectionate and endowed with a very positive kind of aggressiveness. She's adaptable, but she also can be a very stubborn and strong-willed animal.

It is the owner's obligation to offer shelter, hearty nutrition, proper medical attention, exercise, affection and training. It is the latter point — training — that admittedly has its problems, a grin and bear it situation when the puppy decides to take aim on the rug. Friskie aimed very well.

Let's face it. In the world of dogs, pouring over the newspaper has an entirely different connotation. Next to reporting the news the greatest service rendered to the public by the newspaper is it provides an inexhaustible supply of paper-training equipment.



FRISKIE

Friskie had the right idea in early training. She'd sit by the back door waiting to go out. Unfortunately, she wouldn't bark. She'd just sit there. If you were out of the room, you were out of luck. She wouldn't come to you. She expected you to come to her.

After a few minutes she'd obviously give up and then retaliate for this inconvenience on her time. So much for the clean floor.

It was then that a fellow staffer suggested hanging bells at the back door. Brilliant. After a few days it worked. She went to the bells and the problem was solved.

Unfortunately, it also got to be a game. You could hear those bells from any room at any time — like three o'clock in the morning. Super.

Friskie wasn't too excited about the snow and cold, adding strength to the argument against buying winter puppies, and she absolutely hates rain, which wipes out spring puppies. Last spring was a beauty. You had to carry her outside and then she'd defy you as the rain pelted down. She still does.

She's not real crazy about the heat and humidity either. Consequently, I figure in the Midwest there should be about three perfect days each year to take her out of the house.

I hate to admit this, but Friskie failed in her first dog show last weekend. It was no big deal, just a Sidewalk Days show, but she strutted her stuff in the small dog costume and short tail categories. She was an also-ran, horrors, in both classes, and one of the judges was from The Herald, vividly illustrating the pull I have in the office.

Being a dog is a boring job, as all the books stress. I had never thought of it that way, but they're right. Most of a dog's life is spent sleeping or waiting to be fed. Now I look at Friskie and wonder if she is bored beyond belief.

Maybe she could use her own television set? I wonder if she'd like to spend a couple days in one of those posh pet motels, Regency suite, of course! Just think. Fresh linen daily, a brass bed, piped-in music, and an afternoon cookie break.

The past eight months have been fascinating. I honestly can't believe I've undergone such a dramatic transformation in attitude. My idea of a hero now is Benji, not Arnold Palmer.

Maybe you think you'll escape because you're a born dog-hater.

Maybe you think you're impervious to their sneaky charm.

Maybe you feel there's no way, absolutely no way a dog can get to you.

Want to bet?

It was Mark Twain who said, "If you pick up a starving dog and make him prosperous, he will not bite you. This is the principal difference between a dog and a man."

Mark had the right idea.

Olympic tickets still available

It's still not too late to purchase tickets for almost every event at the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal, according to Montgomery Ward, the exclusive U.S. distributor of Olympic tickets. Tickets will be available until August 15 when all nations must return their allotments to Montreal.

Of the 334 events occuring at the Olympic Games next summer, 159 have been sold out, as reported by Ward's ticket computer center in Phoenix.

Gymnastics, track and field and swimming have again proven to be the most popular sports but surprising interest has been shown in horsemanship, volleyball and wrestling.

Schedules of all Olympic events and ticket order blanks are available to the public through the catalog order desks of all 2,300 Ward stores and by mail. People not in convenient access to a Ward's outlet are urged to call the toll free number (800) 528-6042 or send 25 cents in coin or stamps to Wards Auto Club-Olympics, P.O. Box 4000, Taylor, Mich. 48180.

Area muscular dystrophy fights

Two local events will be staged within the next several weeks to raise money in the fight against muscular dystrophy.

On Sunday, Aug. 9 at Northwest Bowl, 519 Consumers Lane in Palatine. A 48-lane Open Bowling Bee will be held from 12:01 a.m. Saturday, August 9 to 11:59 p.m. Sunday, August 10.

Bill Coffey, disk jockey for radio station WMAQ, will take part at 3 p.m. A highlight of the marathon bowling bee will be a "Bill Coffey Challenge" during which bowlers on every lane will compete simultaneously against Coffey in a scoring contest. A free bowling pass will be awarded to any participant who betters Bill's game score.

Other activities during the 48-hour marathon will be "Scotch double" and "Alibi" bowling tournaments as well as an auction of collectors' items.

Then, on Sunday, August 17, a Super Skate for Muscular Dystrophy in cooperation with the Muscular Dystrophy Association and radio station WCFL will be held at the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena from 3:15 to 9:15 p.m.

Ice skaters of all ages are invited to participate and raise funds for the fight against the crippling disease while having a chance to win valuable prizes. Participants solicit pledges from sponsors who agree to donate a specified amount for the length of time or number of miles skated.

Spearheaded by disk jockeys Doug Dahlgren and Dick Sainte, radio station WCFL is promoting the Super Skate program and furnishing prizes for each participating rink.

10 places where rust starts.
1. Inside deck lid lip. 2. Inside the doors. 3. Wheel house lips. 4. Inside the hood lip. 5. On brake lines and suspension components. 6. Fender eyebrows. 7. Inside fender supports. 8. Fender tops. 9. Around trim moldings. 10. In rear quarter panels.
We could name a lot more, but you get the idea.
Sometime within the next few years, you'll see rust spots cropping up on your new car.
Unless you bring it to Ziebart.
We don't just undercoat. We get inside the boxed-in sections of your car's body with our nine patented spray tools. We coat every vulnerable inch of metal with a unique sealant that actually creeps into welded seams and protects all rust-prone areas.

Indy 500 drivers bid in Santa Fe headliner

Four Indy 500 championship car drivers lead a star-studded field of United States Auto Club midget competitors tonight at Santa Fe Speedway.

Nine of the top 10 midget drivers in the national point standings have entered to vie for starting spots in a hotly competitive 40-lap main event on the quarter-mile clay oval. Starting time is 8 p.m. Time trials start at 7:15 at 91st and Wolf Road.

Championship car chauffeurs listed for the Santa Fe Speedway show are headed by Duane "Pancho" Carter from Brownsburg, Ind., probably the most versatile driver in the country with his top 10 ranking in the USAC championship, sprint car and midget divisions. Also prepared to tangle with the USAC midget stars is Jimmy Caruthers from Anaheim, Calif., former midget champ and fifth ranking national car driver for the 1974 season.

All-time midget feature champion Mel Kenyon of Lebanon, Ind. is prepared to show fans why he is the defending champion as well as the only driver ever to win four USAC midget titles; Kenyon, of course, is an Indy 500 veteran of eight consecutive Indianapolis starts with third place his finest race. The fourth championship car driver in the field will be Johnny Parsons Jr. of Speedway, Ind., with two Indy appearances.

Midget all-stars at Santa Fe tonight include present point-leader Sleepy Tripp from Costa Mesa, Calif; second-place pilot Dana Carter from Brownsburg, Ind.; third-place driver Larry Patton out of Anaheim, Calif.; and Bob Wente, midget veteran from St. Louis, Mo.

Threats not the answer in area summer leagues

Fan's forum

Dear Mike Klein:

It's funny that your article should appear on Wednesday, July 23, regarding area (American Legion) baseball. I had begun to prepare this very letter about the same problem. I feel fortunate to manage a Junior Babe Ruth team in the Woodfield League. This 13-to-15-year age group, in my opinion, is easier to manage because they have the desire to learn and the ability to execute in a big-league fashion.

The high school summer leagues are also cutting into our program, as are the American Legion and others. The boys are told to play summer ball with the threat of not making varsity for the upcoming year if they don't. I know for a fact that this has occurred at several of the area high schools. We are dealing with boys, not men. With threats like this, a boy has no alternative but to play ball along with 30 other teammates on the summer roster and maybe getting to play five innings a week.

Our local area ball is the talk of downstate towns because of its high caliber. Our Woodfield Junior Babe Ruth team has been runnerup in state in 1973, third in 1974, and our 13-14-year-olds took the 60-team tournament in LaCrosse, Wis. this year, as per your recent coverage.

Without experience like this, past Woodfield Babe Ruth ballplayers like Mike Ledna, Scott Orbin, Ray Gawron, Joe Parelle, Lou Citro, Kevin McKenna, Russ Zonca, Glen Stromberg, Ray Fairbanks, and at least 25 others that are playing Mid-Suburban ball at present could not excel playing against freshmen and sophomores, because the caliber of ball is better organized outside leagues that draw top-notch talent.

I have nothing against the summer baseball program but I feel that it should be for those who are not playing in an organized league elsewhere. This would enable the coach to spend more time individually with his players and correct some of the flaws instead of just throwing them into a game to pitch a few innings and get at least one at-bat. This is done in little league and discourages the boys when they get into the 15-year-old bracket.

We have four towns in our Woodfield Junior Babe Ruth program at present: Elk Grove, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, and Hoffman Estates. To increase our good caliber of ball, we hope to add Roselle and Arlington Heights and any other towns that might be interested in a balanced program for boys baseball.

Mike Klein:

(Re: NFL Players Union and College All-Star game)

I think you will be interested in knowing that I have a copy of the actual report filed with the Department of Labor by the NFL Players Association. There is one particularly interesting paragraph. It says: "The union has agreed to give its best efforts to raise funds to offset losses, if any, as a result of the cancellation of the Chicago All-Star Game. The nature and the amount of this liability, if any, is unknown at this time."

I would guess that these fellows have a lot of problems right now.

TRADE OWNERS INSTEAD

Fans forum:

Why should the Oakland A's move here? And why should John Allyn sell the Sox to somebody who'll move them to Seattle or some other heaven-on-earth? Instead, I propose a novel trade of owners: John Allyn for Charlie O. Finley, straight up. Finley can fulfill his life-long dream of running a team in Chicago. Allyn, if he wants to, can get out of baseball and make a real killing at the same time by selling the A's. Sox fans then can keep their Sox, Seattle can have the A's, and no one will be able to tell the difference. Not even the Oakland fans, if there are any.

Mundelein defeats Rolling Meadows in Colt League playoff

Mundelin is new champion of the Northwest Suburban Colt League after winning a one-game playoff, 6-3, last Sunday against Rolling Meadows.

The champs and Meadows finished their seoson with 12-4 records, necessitating the extra game.

Meadows made just four hits in the playoff. Dunlavy had two, Hernandez one and Sweeney one.

Ask Andy

Earth's rotation veers drain water

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Terry Cognetto, age 12, of Whitesboro, N.Y., for his question:

WHY DOES WATER DRAIN CLOCKWISE?

All over North America, throughout Europe and across Asia the bath water swirls clockwise as it runs down the drain. However, in Australia, New Zealand and South America the reverse is true. In the Southern Hemisphere, drain water spins down in a counterclockwise direction. These remarkable events occur because the earth is a rotating sphere.

Our spinning earth completes one rotation on its axis in about 24 hours. Naturally, the big solid ball rotates as a single unit. However, since it is shaped like a sphere, the surface rotates at different speeds. For example, the two poles are the opposite ends of the axis around which the globe rotates. Here the rotation speed dwindles to a standstill.

Meantime, halfway between the two poles the bulging equator must spin around about 24,000 miles with each rotation. From there, the surface rotation speed diminished toward the poles. We do not notice this speed variation as we travel, but it does cause strange things to happen to moving objects above the rotating surface. North of the equator it causes draining water to veer to the right, while south of the equator it veers to the left.

This odd happening was figured out by a French mathematician named Gaspard Coreolis, which is why we call it the Coreolis effect. It works equally well on moving water, winds and flying arrows. For example, suppose you launch a long-distance arrow 1,000 miles southward toward the equator. You would expect it to land due south of where you are standing, but it does not.

The earth rotates eastward, carrying a point on the equator at a faster pace than at points north and south. While your arrow is traveling due south, the solid earth beneath it is moving faster toward the east. Hence its path is veered to the right — and it lands somewhat farther to the west. This is the Coreolis effect at work north of the equator, veering all moving objects to the right in a clockwise direction.

This is what causes the drain water in your bathtub to turn clockwise. South of the equator, the rotating earth causes bath water and other moving objects to veer left in the opposite direction.

The Coreolis effect also causes the winds to veer off course. For example, the north and south trade winds blow toward the equator. North of the equator they veer right as the northeast trades. South of the equator they veer left and become the southeast trades.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to John Coyle, age 9, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for his question:

WHERE DO THEY GET CORK?

Maybe you thought that spongy cork is a kind of plastic material. Not at all. The ancient Romans used the lightweight material to make sandals and also for floats to hold up their fishing nets more than 2,000 years ago, ages before modern plastics were invented. Cork actually comes from an evergreen oak tree that thrives in Spain and Portugal.

A cork tree is an old-timer, perhaps as old as 400. At the age of about 10, it begins to grow a thick layer of dry spongy cork around its trunk and branches. This is its special bark. It is cut and peeled away very carefully. Then it is sliced and shaped to make bottle stoppers, soles for shoes and dozens of other things. Since the sturdy trees grow slowly, the next harvest of cork bark is not ready for another 10 years.

Careful play can bring in six

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

South didn't know just how to bid his hand. The one thing he was sure of was that there was no reason to use Blackwood. He didn't really care whether or not his partner held the ace of clubs.

Six was a good contract, but careful play was necessary and South gave the hand the correct careful play.

He ruffed the club lead and drew two rounds of trumps while leaving the jack of trumps in dummy.

Then he went after the diamonds by cashing his ace of diamonds and leading towards dummy's king.

This play left West right between a rock and a hard place. If he ruffed, South would play low from dummy and be able to ruff a losing diamond in dummy later on.

West saw this danger and discarded, but this didn't faze South. He went up with dummy's king and led back the suit. East was in but could not lead a trump so South got to ruff one diamond which was all he needed.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
